ROUND UP Ringside

Welcome to another edition of Wrestling Ringside. Since our last report quite a bit of action has taken place on the wrestling scene. We've seen plenty of great matches and witnessed the emergence of several new stars.

The baddest man in the sport today has to be the eerie Kane, the Undertaker. The Undertaker has literally buried everyone in the WWF. Together with his manager, Paul Bearer, this duo has become the most talked about twosome in the sport. The Undertaker's next victim should be the Ultimate Warrior and then it will be time for the champion, the almighty Hulk!

Since winning the belt at Wrestemania, the Hulk has not faced any challenger other than Sgt. Slaughter and this could present a huge problem for the Hulkster. When Hulk finally goes up against the Undertaker, not only his title, but his career could be in jeopardy.

U.S. champion Lex Luger is determined to win the World belt from Ric Flair at the Great American Bash. Luger has had several opportunities in the past, but he feels that it's now or never. Actually Luger has an excellent chance to dethrone Flair. He's in the best shape of his life, and there is no question that Flair is in the twilight of what was a great career! With these two things in his favor look for Luger to beat Flair in Baltimore and win the WCW World's title.

"Dr. Death" Steve Williams is the first UWF Sport channel America T.V. champion. Williams won the title in a match against Bam Bam Bigelow on a pay-per-view special.

Although the crowd was sparse, the match was great! When more fans get a chance to see the exciting UWF act on their cable outlets, this organization could become a good one.

The IWCCW, under the supervision of Howard Rapp and Mario Savoldi, recently held a series of bouts in Brooklyn and Staten Island, New York. Among the stars appearing for Rick Rude has been feuding with a couple of big names lately. He has a war going on with Paul Orndorff (see page 62), and he is also feuding with The Honky Tonk Man over who was the greatest all-time Intercontinental Champion.

TEXAS PECS!

Dear RINGSIDE:

Being from Texas myself, I have naturally been a long-time fan of the Von Erichs. My favorite of the brothers is Kerry, who now wrestles in the WWF as the Texas Tornado. I think Kerry has the greatest chest in wrestling. He may have the greatest chest in the world. Would you guys do me a favor and show a picture of Kerry that shows off that gorgeous chest of his?

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Here you go, Pam. Enjoy!)

APE FOR ARN!

Dear RINGSIDE:

My favorite wrestler of all time is Arn Anderson of the Four Horsemen. He has been a top contender or a champion in both of the major wrestling organizations for many years now. I hope that he gets a shot to wrestle solo for a World Heavyweight Championship very soon. I think he deserves a chance to prove he really is the best. I am the only one I know who feels this way about Arn. All of my friends have Hulk Hogan or Sting as their favorite wrestler. I was wondering if there are any other wrestling fans out there who agree with me that Arn Anderson is the greatest.

IS CACTUS OKAY?

Dear RINGSIDE:

I heard that recently Cactus Jack was severely injured during a brutal barbed wire match in Philadelphia. Is he okay? I sure hope so, because I think he is the best and I'd hate to see him out of commission for any length of time.

DR. DEATH DOMINATES!

Dear RINGSIDE:

I recently watched the pay-per-view special called Beach Brawl. The main event, between Steve "Dr. Death" Williams and Bam Bam Bigelow was super. I was really glad that Dr. Death won and received the UWF/Sports-Channel Heavyweight Championship belt. Williams has been a super wrestler for a long time now, and he deserves to be wearing a gold belt around his waist.

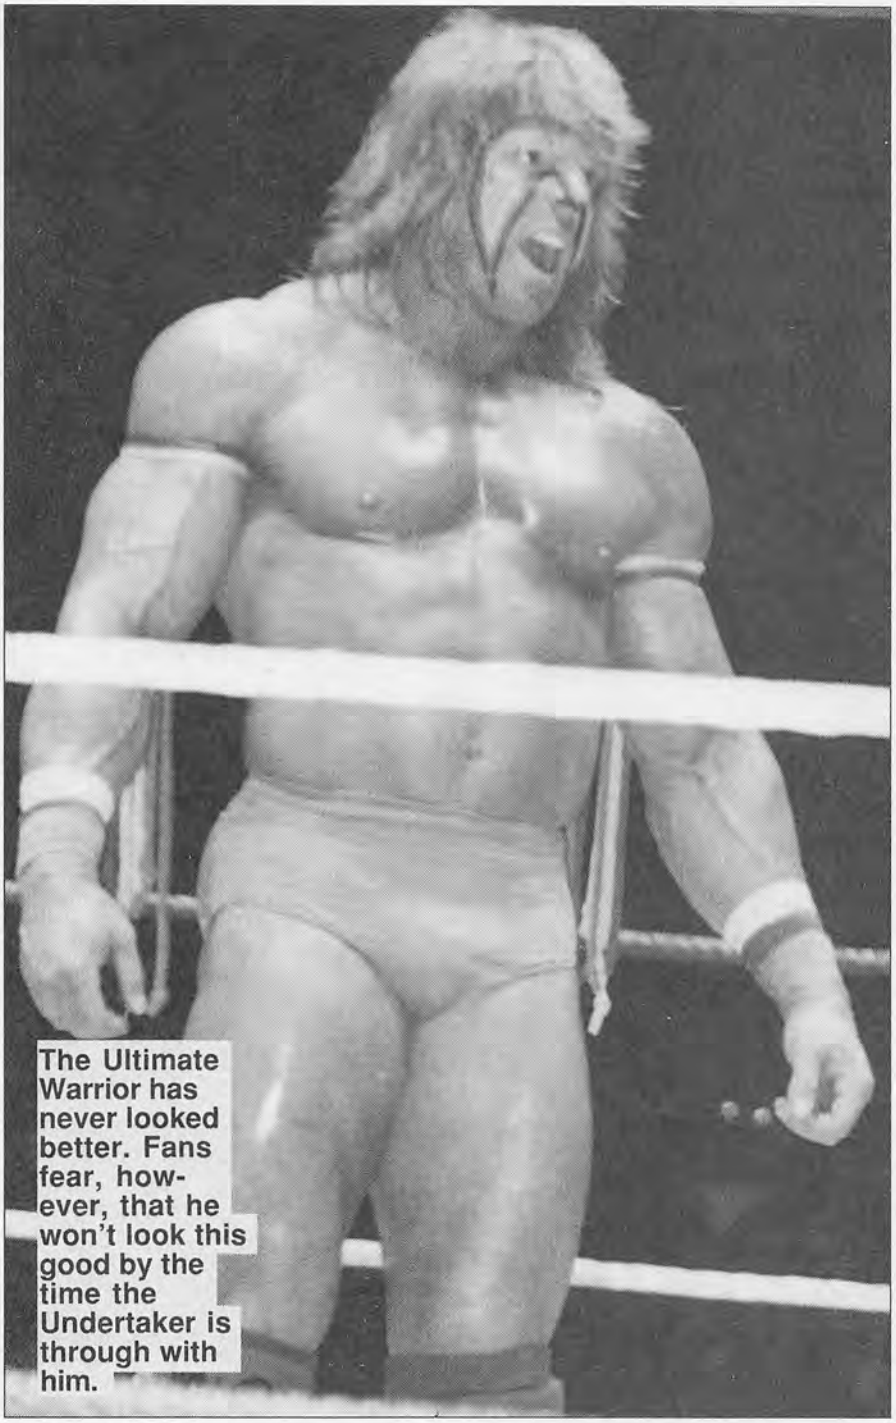
THE ULTIMATE WARRIOR!

Will Undertaker end his career?

By FRANK AMATO



The Ultimate Warrior has never looked better. Fans fear, however, that he won't look this good by the time the Undertaker is through with him.

The Ultimate Warrior is fighting a war on two fronts. On one front he is trying to gain the respect of his peers. On the other front he is trying to avoid being the target of destruction. If he is successful with the latter, he may well accomplish the former. Respect from your peers must be earned, earned with hard work, by doing your job to the best of your ability, sometimes even going beyond what you feel is your best ability. You know when it happens. You get a thumbs up from your fellow workers. A pat on the back. A handshake. Perhaps a raise in pay. In wrestling it works just about the same way. The wrestling fans know and let you know by their cheers or boos, depending on who you are. Warrior knows the feeling. Warrior has heard the cheers from the fans he calls his Warriors. They respect him. But what about non-Warrior fans? What about his peers? This is the respect Warrior searches for.

You would think by now The Ultimate Warrior has gained respect from his peers. What must he do that he hasn't done already? Warrior has held the WWF Intercontinental Championship not once but twice. He first took the belt from Honky Tonk Man in less than one minute. He lost the belt to Ravishing Rick Rude but Rude had outside help from manager Bobby Heenan. Warrior got even with Rude by regaining the belt. Of course, Roddy Piper did lend a hand so to speak by lifting his kilt and mooning Rude, which helped distract Rude as Warrior came from behind for the pinfall. Most wrestling experts felt Warrior would defeat Rude anyway and discounted Piper's brief interlude.

During Warrior's second

Intercontinental reign he defended his belt against Andre The Giant. Andre, a former WWF World Heavyweight Champion at the time (he defeated Hulk Hogan) never gave Warrior much trouble. At Madison Square Garden, Warrior beat Andre in less than two minutes! In fact, Warrior held other equally fast victories over Andre throughout the WWF circuit. Not even The Hulkster can boast of such victories over Andre. It can be said of Andre that he was slipping and his career on the downslide. Putting that aside Warrior still defeated a wrestler who outweighed him by over two hundred and fifty pounds, and towered over him. Remember, this was still Andre The Giant.

One WWF source comments, "Those victories over Andre made many fans take a hard look at Warrior. Hey, only Hulk Hogan had beaten Andre and had hard times against him. Warrior beat Andre quicker. I don't think fans thought Warrior was that powerful until he dropped Andre. Warrior was now being seen in a much different light."

The Ultimate Warrior was enjoying his role as number two in popularity, with Hulk Hogan still numero uno. Warrior was also the number two man as IC Champion under World Champion Hogan. What was better than having them team up? Their pairing turned heads but it was brief. Weeks later at The Royal Rumble it ended as Hogan eliminated Warrior. Their relationship became strained. For the first time since appearing in the WWF, Warrior challenged the Hulkster. At Wrestlemania VI, the two most powerful forces in the WWF clashed. What was most unique about this match was both championships were on the line. Also unique was the fact that, for the first time, the fans were split. The

The Warrior celebrates after winning the WWF World Heavyweight Championship belt from Hulk Hogan at Wrestlemania VI in Toronto.

The Ultimate Warrior was recently locked inside a coffin by the Undertaker, and had to receive CPR to be revived from his ordeal. Fans wonder how many experiences like that the Warrior can take.

Warriors against the Hulkamaniacs. Even the experts were split on the predictions. If Warrior was ever to gain respect this was the time. Nobody had ever pinned the Hulkster's shoulders to the mat except Andre and then it was highly controversial (remember the two identical referees?). Of course, Tony Atlas did accomplish it as well, but that happened in 1981 when Hogan was a rulebreaker and managed by Fred Blassie.

A WWF observer comments on this match, "I don't think either Warrior or Hogan actually hated each other. It was unforeseen circumstances that made this match. Yet, I feel Warrior always secretly wanted to wrestle Hogan. I also think Hogan wondered if he could beat Warrior if they ever met. The match itself was a great one. Both wrestlers were up for it. Warrior never looked better or wrestled better. If you watched that match you saw Hogan get hurt early. I think it was his leg. I give Hogan credit for battling back and nearly winning. Hogan made one mistake and Warrior was ready. To Hogan's credit he showed great sportsmanship by presenting the belt to Warrior. This was Warrior's crowning moment."

There should have been a rematch. Warrior wanted it. The Hulkster wanted it. The wrestling public wanted it. Only one individual didn't want it, he being Jack Tunney, WWF president. Tunney made a statement that he couldn't, in good conscience, grant a rematch because of the fury of the first match. He said he was worried about the welfare of Warrior and Hogan. Huh? Were these wrestlers or unruly children? A rematch could have relieved suspicions that Warrior's victory was just a fluke. The rematch also, had he repeated his victory, would have given Warrior the respect of his peers. Despite Hogan giving the belt to Warrior, Hulkamaniacs refused to gather 'round Warrior. Warrior became a fighting champion. He successfully defended his belt against the top-rated contenders: Ted DiBiase, Haku, Ravishing Rick Rude, Honky Tonk Man, Greg Valentine, Dino Bravo, Earthquake, Mr. Perfect and Randy Savage. These victories were impressive but it was the Hulkster everyone wanted Warrior to wrestle. It was hoped a rematch would take place at Wrestlemania VII.

Only a man with the size and skill of The Undertaker could confront this man without fear in his eyes.

It wasn't meant to be. Warrior became pre-occupied with Savage and his manager Sensational Queen Sherri. Savage was bent on regaining the belt and was willing to do anything to get it. Even if that meant making a deal with Sgt. Slaughter. The deal was: if Slaughter became champion, Savage would receive his title shot. At The Royal Rumble the world watched in horror as Warrior met Slaughter in a wild melee. Warrior was hard-pressed in this match but did have the upper hand when Sherri appeared at ringside. Warrior stopped his attack on Slaughter and concentrated on Sherri, just as Savage came running out. Warrior lifted Sherri and threw her onto Savage. At this point Slaughter hit Warrior from behind and draped Warrior over the ropes. Savage took his royal scepter and broke it over Warrior's head. Warrior never knew Slaughter covered him for the pinfall to become the new champion. Wrestling fans never had time to wonder if Warrior would get revenge on Fans fear that one day The Undertaker will be carrying the Warrior's ashes around in an urn!

The Warrior says that he came from the darkness. The Undertaker wants to send him back there.

Slaughter at Wrestlemania VII because later that night the Hulkster emerged the winner of The Royal Rumble and openly challenged Slaughter for the belt. Warrior now found himself on the outside looking in but knew he had signed matches against Savage and hoped to exact his revenge. The next night at Madison Square Garden, Warrior and Savage made war inside a steel cage. The end result was Savage the winner because Queen Sherri prevented Warrior from climbing over the top. Warrior, furious over losing two important matches in a row, got lucky when he trapped Sherri in the cage and ripped off her clothes, leaving "her royal highness" to escape in embarrassment clad in bra, panties and garterbelt. Warrior wasn't finished with Savage and demanded a special match for Wrestlemania. Loser must retire. Warrior may not have been champion, but—should he beat Savage—at least he would have the satisfaction of seeing Savage retire. At Wrestlemania, Warrior did beat Savage and accomplished his own form of revenge. More so when he saw Sherri turn on Savage afterwards.

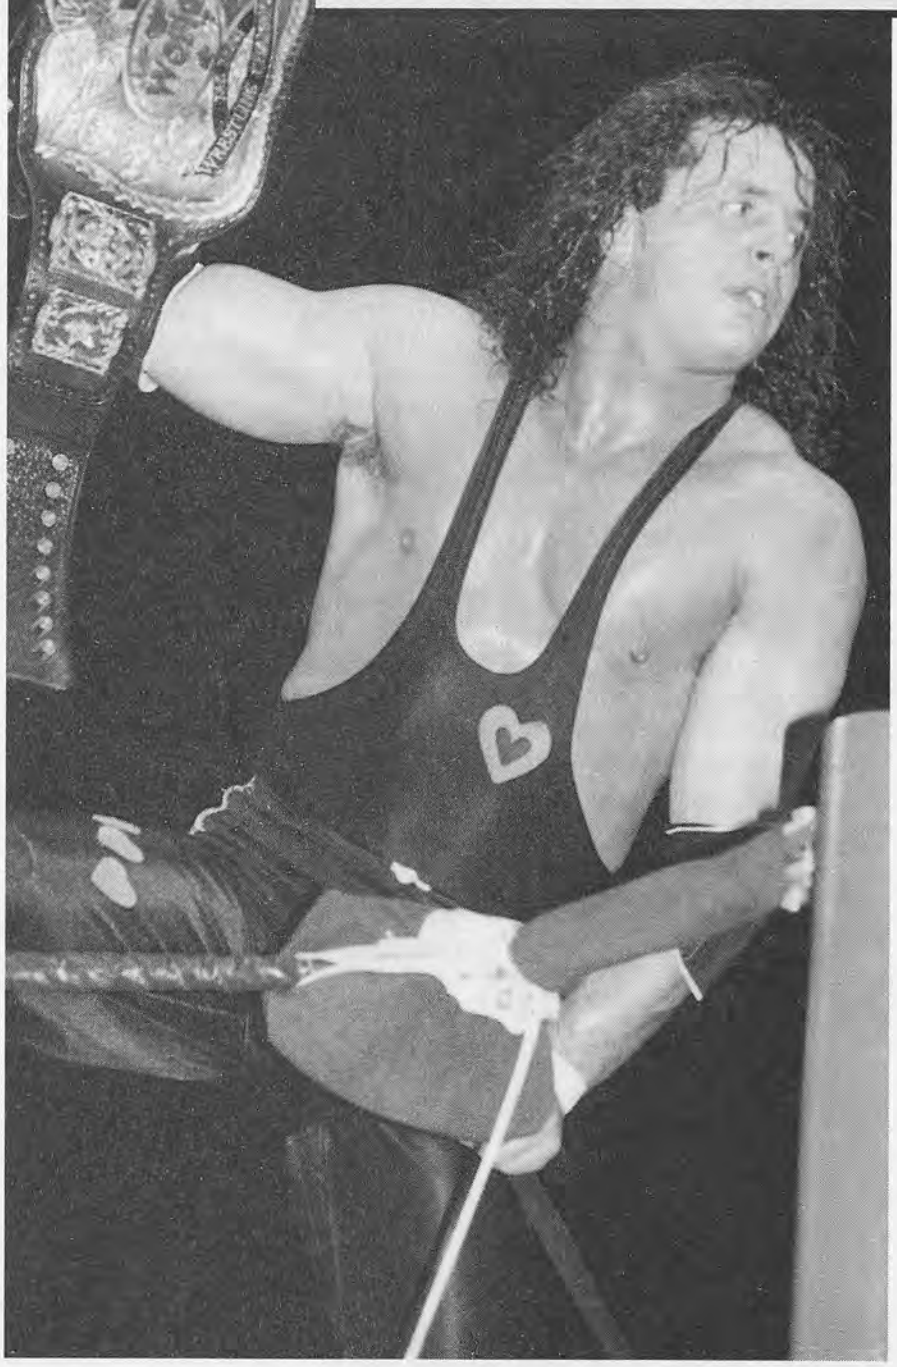
Warrior saw his title hopes go up in flames at Wrestlemania as the Hulkster became champion for the third time. What he faced now was somebody more horrendous than anyone he'd ever known. The Undertaker managed by Paul bearer had decided Warrior was the only wrestler who prevented him from going after Hogan. A few weeks after Wrestlemania, Warrior appeared on The Funeral Parlor hosted by Bearer. What happened to Warrior sent shock waves across the country. As Warrior was having heated words with Bearer, The Undertaker emerged from a standing coffin and attacked Warrior from behind and placed Warrior in a coffin made just for him. Warrior was sealed inside this coffin for over two minutes without benefit of air. Several WWF officials worked feverishly to open the locked coffin and when the coffin was finally opened Warrior was unconscious. Luckily for Warrior he was given CPR which helped to revive him.

A few weeks after this incident Warrior received his long-awaited rematch with Slaughter. During this match Bearer wheeled out a coffin at ringside and The Undertaker emerged from it. Now Warrior was attacked by Slaughter, his manager General Adnan and The Undertaker. Warrior came face to face with The Undertaker and hit him with two powerful clotheslines which surprisingly had little effect. Warrior stared in wonderment at his right arm trying to figure out why nothing happened. More surprisingly, Hulk came out to help Warrior, hit The Undertaker with the WWF belt, and nothing happened as well. Warrior has explained on many occasions how he comes from the darkness. His power also comes from the darkness. Yet, sealed in that coffin in total darkness, his power failed him. Warrior clawed at the material within the coffin, he must have tried to pound and push open the coffin. He couldn't. Warrior may claim he's from the darkside and receives his power there but he also knows he's human. If his power can't stop The Undertaker, then perhaps this crypt dweller puts Warrior's career in jeopardy. Even his well being.

No wrestler has ever stopped The Ultimate Warrior before. No wrestler ever withstood Warrior's power before. Not Andre. Not Earthquake. Not Big Boss Man. Not even Hogan. Not until now. The Undertaker has taken a personal interest in The Ultimate Warrior. This challenge is the biggest one for Warrior. His career is in dire jeopardy. His life is also on the line. Respect is one thing but now Warrior faces his ultimate challenge. SURVIVAL!

At Wrestlemania VII in Los Angeles, The Warrior celebrates his victory over Randy "The Macho King" Savage. That match was a loser-must-retire match.

BRET "THE HITMAN" HART: "I need a manager!"



Bret "The Hitman" Hart enters the ring carrying his WWF World Tag Team Championship belt, an honor he shared with his Hart Foundation teammate, Jim "The Anvil" Niedhart. The Harts lost the belts to the Nasty Boys at Wrestlemania and have worked as a team on a limited basis only ever since.

By DON LAIBLE

He's been called one of the most exciting, well schooled wrestlers of the past decade. With all of Bret Hart's talents, why hasn't Bret Hart been successful in capturing the Intercontinental championship? Was he involved in tag team competition too long to adapt to the same level of greatness in singles action? Is "The Hitman" mentally as well as physically so dependent on his longtime partner Jim "The Anvil" Niedhart that he can't function in the ring on his own? Hart won't comment on his shortcomings concerning the title but it appears he's taking steps to correct his situation by interviewing for a cornerman.

The choices being considered have many fans and wrestlers on the edge of disappointment. Will he or won't he remain the same person? That depends on how much "The Hitman" wants the Intercontinental title and who is behind him filling his head with ideas. Since arriving in the World Wrestling Federation five years ago, Bret Hart has been appreciated and liked by the majority of fans. His dedication to his craft hasn't changed but in reaching a crossroads in his career, he is confronted with some heavy decisions. Where should he direct his energies in the WWF.

Hart's old pal Jim "The Anvil" Niedhart is no longer taking to the mat on a full-time schedule and is scoring high marks in the broadcast booth. Is it important for The Hart Foundation to pick up where they left off at WrestleMania VII? Going out on the losing end against The Nasty Boys and relinquishing the WWF tag team championship was a bitter pill for Hart to swallow.

To this day it remains a sore topic for him to discuss. Apparently it's too soon for Hart to make a decision of such magnitude. Perhaps looking for a break from tag play is why Hart is anxious to test challengers in singles competition. Those close to him feel he has a need to forget tag competition. At this point he would be too sentimental to engage in tag team matches without "The Anvil." There are many questions still unanswered but then again Bret Hart is a complex individual.

The Hitman's efforts appear to be gearing for an all-out run for the IC title. Pushing for a chance to challenge Hulk Hogan for the WWF heavyweight belt at this time is out of the question. It's not as if he isn't deserving of the match but with the champ's schedule so deeply booked, Hart's waiting would surely waste the sharpness in his skills. No, he's looking at his wrestling career from a realistic standpoint. Before attempting to get to second base, Hart has to reach first base—and that means the IC belt. A confrontation with "Mr. Perfect" Curt Hennig would be an ideal test of skill for him.

Physically they matchup evenly with Hart at 5'11" and 240 lbs. and Hennig at 6'1" and 250 lbs. Both are second generation grapplers well versed in the science of both the amateur and pro wrestling techniques. The clash between the two superstars is much welcomed. However, there is one major drawback to Hart's pursuit of "Mr. Perfect," or other highly ranked contenders like The Warlord, Haku, The Berserker or The Earthquake.

All IC belt contenders have one common denominator: they are under the watchful eyes of a leading manager. As much as many wrestlers and fans try to mentally block it out, the fact remains that anyone who has gone on to win the championship belt either has been under a manager's tutelage or hasn't held onto it for a prolonged period of time. Case in point, when Ricky "The Dragon" Steamboat dethroned "Macho Man" Randy Savage for the IC honors at WrestleMania III, in less than three months he was stripped of the belt in Buffalo, New York by The Honky Tonk Man managed by "The Mouth of the South" Jimmy Hart.

Hart, a two time WWF tag titlist from Calgary, Alberta, Canada has always cared a great deal about how his public perceived him. He worked hard to gain their trust. Instead of hooking up with a manager, to keep him on the straight and narrow, many within the WWF locker rooms are urging Hart to team with "The British Bulldog" Davey Boy Smith. During both wrestlers' pre-WWF days they saw a great deal of mat action together in Calgary. What an unbeatable team they promise to be.

Smith is somewhat in the same predicament as Hart. He returned to the WWF without longtime tag partner and best friend The Dynamite Kid. As is the case with Hart, Davey Boy is scoring high grades in singles competition but seems out of place. Both men are still adjusting to their new styles.

Managers are pulling out all the stops in hopes of getting Hart's signature to one of their contacts. They view him as another vehicle in raking in even more cash than they are already flooded with. There's that greed factor again. In attempts to analyze his newfound situation in a neutral perspective, "The Hitman" should Bret Hart now says that, working as a solo act, he needs a manager. His fans fear that many of the current WWF managers might want to change "The Hitman's" wrestling style, thus ruining his "good-guy" image.

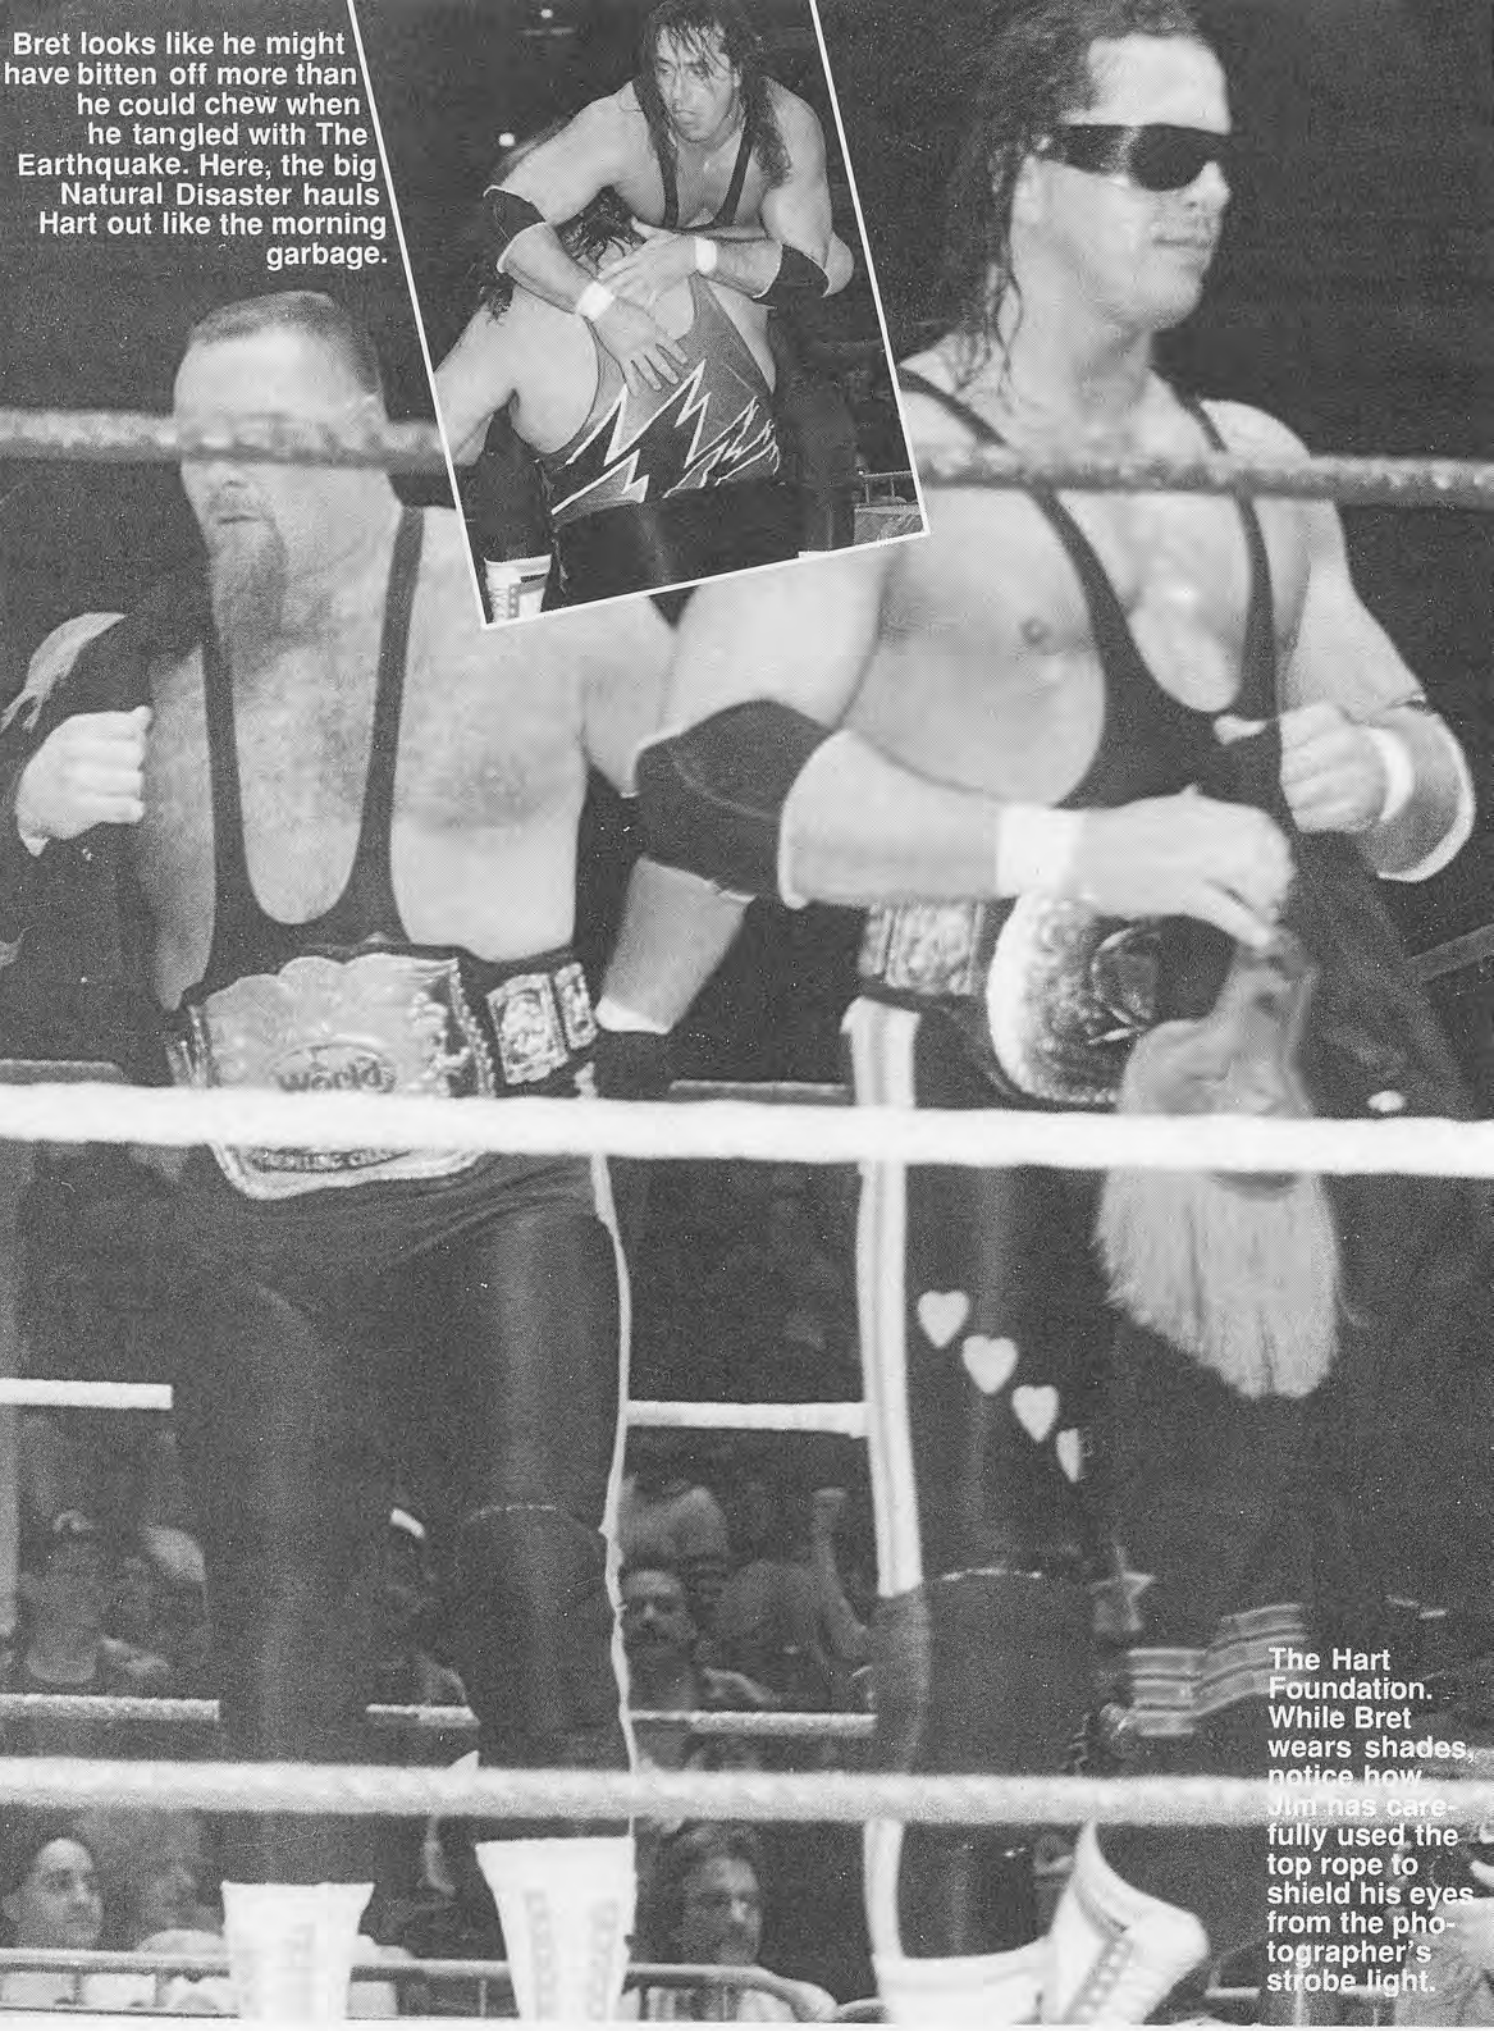
Hart uses Dino "The World's Strongest man" Bravo to show off his knowledge of scientific wrestling holds.



Bret looks like he might have bitten off more than he could chew when he tangled with The Earthquake. Here, the big Natural Disaster hauls Hart out like the morning garbage.

The Hart Foundation. While Bret wears shades, notice how Jim has carefully used the top rope to shield his eyes from the photographer's strobe light.

weigh the pros and cons of each offer carefully. Slick, who cares to be properly addressed as "The Doctor of Style," may have the best shot in securing his services. He remains the only current WWF manager not to have handled the career of a champion. You know Slick is starving to be able to boast he too took a wrestler to the top of the promotion. It's been revealed he has offered the most incentives for "The Hitman" should he sign on with him. Slick is reportedly willing to split his tag twosome of Power and Glory (Paul Roma and Hercules) and allow Hart to select either of them as a partner. Now that seems to be making sacrifices at all costs.

Bobby Heenan has taken a more realistic and honest approach concerning Bret Hart than most of his critics would have originally given him credit for. As he sizes up "The Hitman," he's better off being on his side than against him. "The Brain" could make one of two strategic moves. Sign up Bret and keep him off Curt Hennig's tail or wait until Hart wins the IC belt then bring him aboard his crew.

Mr. Fuji may be the one person who will convince Bret Hart to stick to tag team matches only. A tag specialist his entire wrestling career, no one in the WWF understands that style better than Fuji. Along with his successful duo The Orient Express (Pat Tanaka and Kato), Mr. Fuji can use his wealth of experience to further Bret's training while at the same time generate a search for a new, compatible partner for him. Perhaps Bret and Mr. Fuji could sway Tito Santana or Greg Valentine to re-evaluate their careers and see things their way.

Finally, Jimmy Hart (no relation to "The Hitman") proudly struts in front of his 6'6" 480 lbs. Earthquake. Both men would like nothing better than to once and for all get Andre the Giant off their backs. And a way they can do that is put "The Hitman" in The Earthquake's corner and issue challenges to The Legion of Doom (Animal and Hawk). Jimmy Hart's toughest chore may be keeping peace within his own camp. Not allowing The Nasty Boys (Jerry Saggs and Brian Knobbs) and Bret Hart to pile up on each other could be easier said than done. With The Earthquake bucking for the WWF title and Bret the IC belt, they could be the first all-champion tag team in the WWF before winning the tag championship.

All the managers would certainly be accommodating to him. It would be in their best interest. Drastic steps are needed to land Bret Hart in the top challengers spot in the singles division. The bottom line is, "The Hitman" has to look out for himself first, everyone else comes second.

Fans of the Harts wonder if they will ever wrestle as a team on a full-time basis again. (By the way, did you know that Jim Niedhart was a championship shot-putter in college?)

Niedhart waits for medical attention to arrive as a fallen Bret Hart lays sprawled on the canvas, using only his championship belt as a pillow.

"This time I want to win the gold fair and square!"

Now that Doom has broken up, Butch Reed and Ron Simmons have been waging war. Here, a busted open Simmons stands alone in the ring, holding the chair that Reed originally used as a weapon.

Simmons batters Reed outside the ring.

RON SIMMONS SEEKS NEW TAG PARTNER!

By DON LAIBLE

One more time. The fans demanded it. Florida's Ron Simmons has earned it. When managed by Theodore R. Long and tag partner to "Hacksaw" Butch Reed, together they were billed as Doom and enjoyed living up to that title by making others' wrestling days miserable. The World Championship Wrestling tag title was claimed and not defended with honor by Simmons and his partner. Since going straight (he is no longer under Long's diabolical influence) and pursuing singles competition, Simmons—a former college football All-American—became more rule conscious and popular with the wrestling public. Finding the most compatible partner in WCW and once again going after the world tag team championship should be priority #1 for him.

Respect and dignity were missing during his initial reign with Doom and now those qualities are important to him. But who to choose? The major obstacle which lay ahead for him is weeding through too much talent crowding his dressing room these days. The time for redemption has arrived. Ron Simmons feels obligated to return to the arenas, see those same fans who witnessed his unscrupulous ways while under the influence of Teddy Long and Butch Reed and do it for them in the ring right this time.

Mixed feelings have been detected throughout the WCW dressing room since Simmons' announcement that he is hunting for a new tag mate. Several top stars spoke right up, hoping they would not only get the nod to team with him but grab the tag belts at the same time.

For the time being, about the only two WCW wrestlers who can breathe easier, exempt from Simmons' wrath, are the heavyweight and United States titlists. However, they too know that the time will come when they must answer to Simmons. The criteria for a possible partnership with Ron is simple: be loyal and have a disgust for Teddy and Butch.

Among the wide range of seasoned talent for Simmons to evaluate, six wrestlers figure to be in the running. Originally the pack stood at seven but Ricky Morton lost his position on his own. Morton was viewed by many as a longshot in being the finalist chosen but since entering the sport in 1986, Simmons had been impressed with his easy-going friendly attitude for longtime tag partner Robert Gibson. Out of nowhere, unprovoked, Ricky Morton destroyed the good graces of his friends during a match in the Georgia Mountain Center.

While working side-by-side with Dustin Rhodes against the corrupt duo of Terry Taylor and Arn Anderson, Barry Windham (a close associate of Anderson's) came to the ring and spoke to Ricky. What transpired next was disgusting. Forgetting his purpose and allegiance to his partner, Morton walked back to the dressing room. Looking on as a scout, Ron shook his head in disappointment, turned around, threw his arms high in the air and walked back to the dressing room scratching Ricky's name from his ledger.

Sting, not a surprise to many, is among the sensational six that Ron Simmons continues to study carefully. There's no doubt that Sting has proven to be an incredible singles wrestler. In tag team matches with Lex Luger he's enjoyed a successful track record in recent months. However, with the monumental task looming in front of Ron, perhaps Sting is still not experienced enough. Not that Sting has been ducking any tag challengers. Mainly there hasn't been any call for him to join forces with anyone on a regular basis.

Reed puts a nasty dent in this chair by clobbering Simmons over the head with it.

A couple of years back Sting was brought in to The Horsemen's stable and ended up severely injured, a knee injury that still causes him pain. Can talent compensate for the lack of tag experience? Ron Simmons has clearly stated that he will continue to observe the former WCW heavyweight champion, but how much time can he spend on one man with five others also in need of his attention?

Simmons can't ignore El Gigante for the vacant tag position. Sure he's a rookie—but at 7'7" and 450 lbs., so what? If nothing else, El Gigante could serve in a capacity much like that of a relief pitcher in baseball. His participation in the match can be just enough to allow his partner to rest at certain intervals during the battle so they can continue to do the best job possible. Since being pitted in singles action with The One Man Gang, El Gigante has greatly improved. He is demonstrating more confidence in the ring.

Now wrestling for six years, Simmons has developed a keen eye for what to expect in certain situations. His coaching instincts just may answer the challenge and begin to mold El Gigante into a dominating force in WCW tag action. The potential needs to be brought to the surface. As is the case with others in contention to be Ron's next partner, El Gigante is seeking his first championship. The WCW world tag team belts would be a wonderful place to start.

He's one big, budding mat superstar. At 6' 5" and 250 lbs., Dustin Rhodes of Austin, Texas meets and exceeds all the requirements to land beside Ron Simmons. Dustin, son of legendary wrestling great Dusty Rhodes, is bigger in size than the majority of opponents either Teddy Long or any manager could find as opposition. And in today's pro wrestling circles, size means everything. Young, energetic and not hesitant to take high risk maneuvers off the top rope, it would be important to Ron knowing Dustin isn't afraid to take chances.

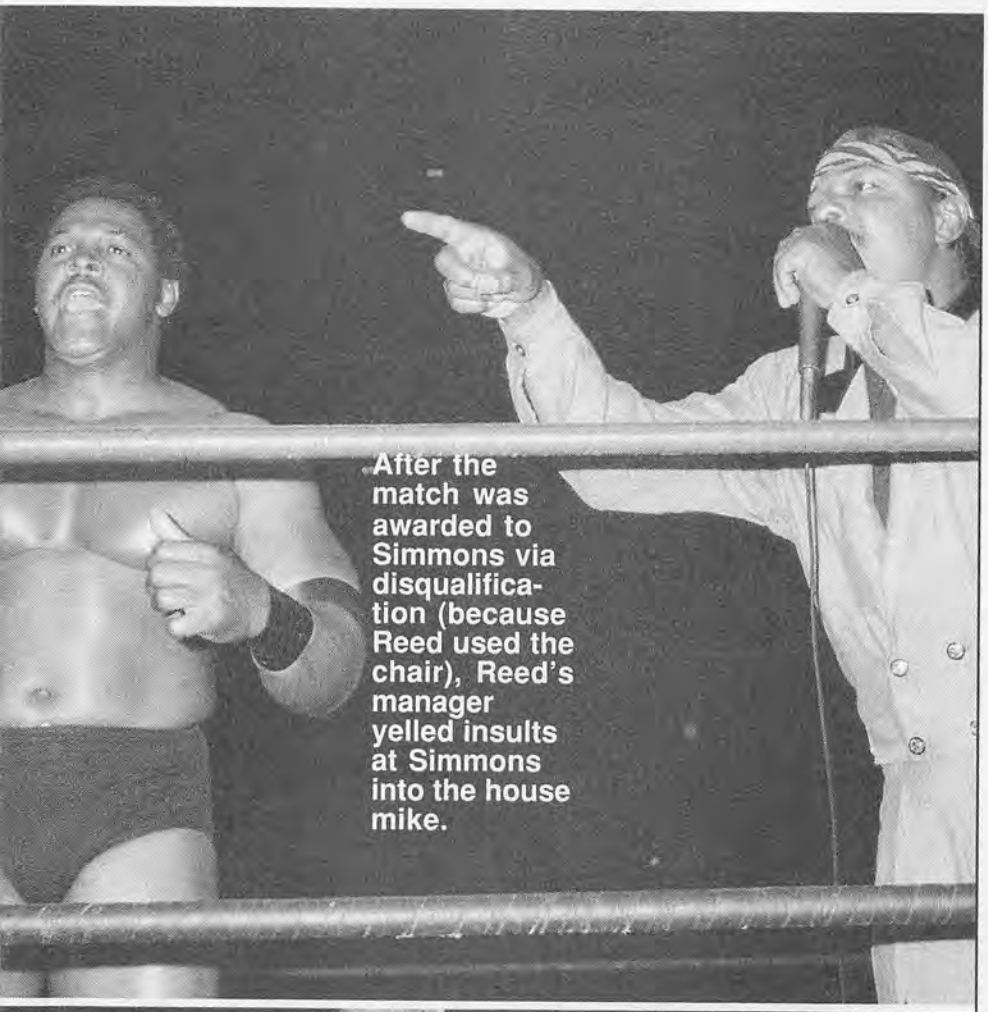
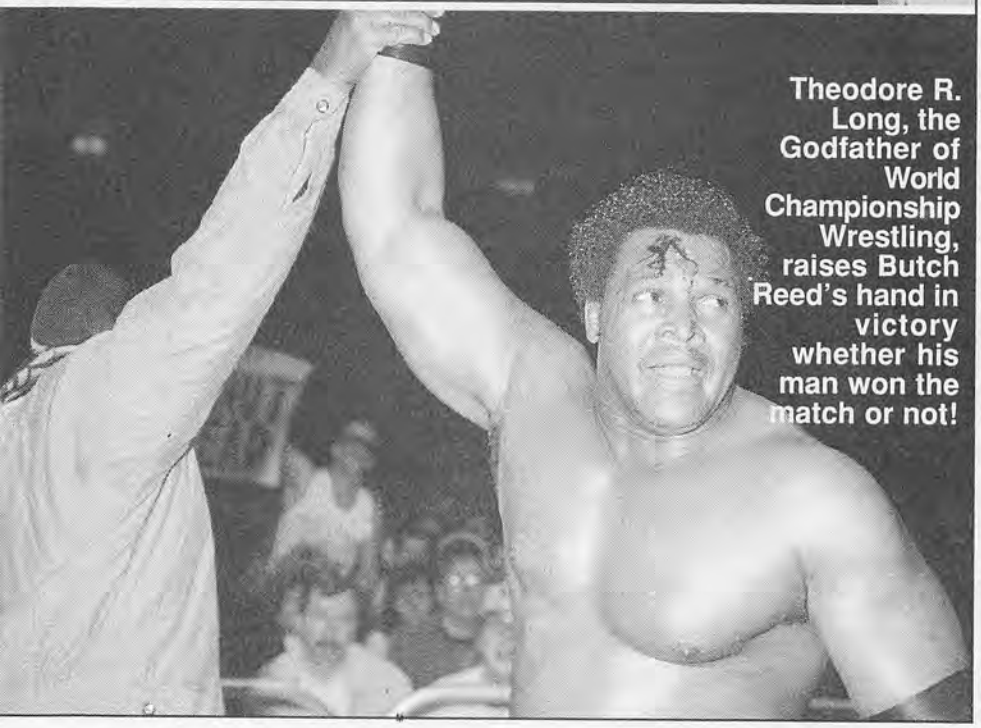
Reed, who's also bleeding by this time, flattens Simmons with a clothesline.

"Beautiful" Bobby Eaton is busy these days with the WCW Television title. But that's not to say teaming with Simmons is totally out of the question. He has no fondness towards Long, Reed or The One Man Gang and would not back away from chasing the WCW belts, even if they were around the waists of friends like The Steiner Brothers or The Young Pistols. Known as "Mr. Tag Team" because of The Midnight Express, Eaton would make the time in scheduling for his first wrestling love which is tag team competition.



After the match was awarded to Simmons via disqualification (because Reed used the chair), Reed's manager yelled insults at Simmons into the house mike.



Theodore R. Long, the Godfather of World Championship Wrestling, raises Butch Reed's hand in victory whether his man won the match or not!

"The Z Man" Tom Zenk is looking to rebound after losing the WCW TV belt last winter to Arn Anderson. He's also coming back from a bicep injury. Forming a tag partnership with Ron Simmons could be the jolt that his career needs. No stranger to tag titles, Zenk once claimed the United States tag championship with Brian Pillman in his corner. Ron's forte is using his strength to his advantage. Having Tom in his corner, their offense would balance out because Zenk is an aerialist. He strives to keep his opponents on their backs, which puts them at a disadvantage. With his sleeper hold working efficiently, perhaps it is time for Ron to make a fast decision and tab Tom Zenk as his partner.

Should Ricky Morton, Larry Zbyszko or The York Foundation join forces to confront Ron Simmons, whatever the match stipulations, . Brian Pillman would want nothing more than to be in on the brawl. With The Great Muta, Hiro Hase and Tatsumi Fujinami among the Japanese contingency entering the WCW ranks and promising to chase the world tag belts, Simmons couldn't find a more courageous partner. Wearing down opponents like a boxer would, Pillman gets in a solid hit then moves out of harm's way. If there is a drawback it would be his size (5' 10" and 225 lbs.). Obstacles are meant to be overcome. Brian thrives to have his talents pushed to their maximum.

Wrestling history is in the making and Ron Simmons is in the thick of it!

All six candidates present impressive credentials for Ron Simmons to mull over. Being so familiar in style and attitude, he may opt to rotate the half dozen men on a regular basis, a team concept which he would pilot. All would share in one specific, significant evening when the tag championship would be theirs. An ally attack has never been attempted in the WCW. If any one person could pull it off, Ron can. Wrestling history is in the making and Ron Simmons is in the thick of it.

By FRANK AMATO

Fifteen years ago Beautiful Bobby Eaton embarked on his professional wrestling career. The year was 1976. He was young but his determination to succeed was evident. He possessed great speed and agility, just as he does today. As a southerner from Alabama, he speaks softly. He's not flamboyant, although he does wear colorful ring attire. Bobby got his start wrestling in Tennessee, Alabama and Kentucky. He was a fan favorite back then. Yes, it was a long time ago. Once again, years later, Bobby is going solo and he's back being a fan favorite.

Bobby says of his early years, "I grew up watching wrestling. All I ever wanted was to someday put on the tights. I helped put up the ring for promoter Nick Gulas in the Knoxville area which was the Mid-America region then but today you know it as the USWA. It never dawned on me to be anything other than a fan favorite."

The year 1979 became the turning point for Bobby. He received his big chance to wrestle Mid-America Champion Randy Savage for the belt and Bobby became the champion. Under his first manager Tojo Yamamoto, Bobby teamed with George Gulas as The Jet Set and won the Mid-America Tag Team Championship from David Shultz and Dennis Condrey! Yes, the same Dennis Condrey that Bobby would later make history with as The Midnight Express, but more about that later. This feud would last for several months. Another feud had Bobby and Gulas facing Dirty Dutch Mantel and Gypsy Joe. It was during this feud that Yamamoto turned to the villainous side. Bobby and Gulas beat Mantel and Gypsy Joe in a Loser-Leave-Town Match but the relationship with Gulas was beginning to turn sour. Gulas was blaming Yamamoto for trying to steal Bobby away. Bobby was caught between two friends. Bobby surprised everyone by splitting with Gulas and joining Yamamoto. Bobby enjoyed more success as he won the Mid-Southern Championship.

Beautiful Bobby Eaton flies higher and lands harder than just about any other wrestler currently working for World Championship Wrestling.

Goin' solo hasn't slowed up Eaton a bit!

In 1983 there was another turning point in Bobby's career. Jim Cornette—once a wrestling photographer, now turned manager—was managing Dennis Condrey, known as Loverboy. Cornette had seen Bobby wrestle many times and liked what he saw. Cornette also saw Bobby and Condrey as a tag team. It didn't take much persuasion to convince Bobby that here was a future tag team headed for greatness.

Says Bobby, "Dennis Condrey was a tough wrestler and I should know. We had been on opposite sides years earlier but his competitiveness impressed me. Jim Cornette was a flamboyant guy. He had great ideas. He called us The Midnight Express and I became Beautiful Bobby Eaton. Dennis and I let Jim do all the talking and we just wrestled. It was perfect right from the start. Dennis and I soon realized we belonged together as a team. Our styles blended. Dennis is a master at holds and possesses good speed. We weren't large but again we are not considered small wrestlers."

For about a year they made the Mid-South their base of operations and captured the Mid-South Tag Team Championship. Next The Midnight Express entered the World Class region. It didn't take them long to become Tag Team Champions. This was when World Class had many cable outlets and The Midnight Express soon became visible to millions of wrestling fans. They had outstanding feuds with Kerry and Kevin Von Erich and later with The Fantastics (Bobby Fulton and Tommy Rogers).

The feud with The Fantastics heated up World Class. The Midnight Express became the most hated tag team in that promotion, rivaling The Fabulous Freebirds and the duo of Gentleman Chris Adams and the late Gino Hernandez. Eventually The Midnight Express lost the belts to The Fantastics and decided to move on to the NWA. This wouldn't be the last Eaton and Condrey would hear from Fulton and Rogers.

The legend of The Midnight Express took fruition during the following years in the NWA. Feuds help tremendously in building legends and the feud against The Rock-N-Roll Express was legendary. After months of feuding Eaton and Condrey won the NWA World Tag Team Championship from Ricky Morton and Robert Gibson on February 2, 1986. This feud built up to fever pitch that saw The R & R's regain the belts on August 8, in Philadelphia, in best of three falls. Failure to regain the belts put a strain on the relationship between Cornette and Condrey. Cornette acquired the services of Big Bubba Rogers as his personal bodyguard and to protect Eaton and Condrey. Condrey was fired by Cornette after failing to win the revived U.S.Tag Team Belts. Cornette quickly signed Sweet Stan Lane to team with Bobby.

Bobby comments on the Condrey situation, "I wasn't part of what inner turmoil Cornette had with Dennis. For whatever reasons Jim had (supposedly his wealthy mother made the decision), the blame was placed on Dennis. I tried to smooth things out but nobody listened. To my way of thinking we just had a run of bad luck that sometimes happens."

Eaton and Lane started to gel. They hoped to regain the belts from Gibson and Morton but Cornette made a deal with J.J. Dillon who managed Tully Blanchard and Arn Anderson. Under orders from Cornette Bobby and Stan waylaid The R & R's mere seconds before Tully and Arn were to wrestle them for the world tag belts and severely injured Morton's shoulder. This injury led to Tully and Arn winning the belts. Bobby and Stan also gained the U.S. Tag Team belts by defeating Barry Windham and Ronnie Garvin, on May 16, 1987. It wasn't long afterwards that The Fantastics arrived to challenge them and their long standing feud was rekindled. On April 26, 1988 they lost the belts but regained them on July 10, in Baltimore, during The Great American Bash. They suddenly found themselves involved in a feud with Blanchard and Anderson when Cornette and Dillon exchanged harsh words. Bobby was beaten and left bloody by Blanchard and Anderson in his dressing room one night. On September 10, in Philadelphia, they made history by taking the NWA World Belts from Anderson and Blanchard and thus became the first tag team to hold both World and U.S. Tag belts simultaneously. NWA rules forced them to vacate the U.S. belts. Bobby and Stan were now being cheered because of this feud. Then The Road Warriors issued their challenge and took the belts from Bobby and Stan on October 29, in New Orleans, Louisiana.

If this setback weren't bad enough, they soon found themselves at odds with Paul E. Dangerously and his Original Midnight Express (Loverboy Dennis Condrey and Randy Rose), when they were attacked on TV. After months of hard fought tag team and six man tag team bouts, Eaton and Lane emerged the winners of this feud. The breakup of Condrey and Rose followed. This didn't sit well with Dangerously, who brought in The Samoan Swat Team and another feud was underway. This feud also cost them to lose a tournament, for the U.S. belts. They also found themselves feuding with The Freebirds. Bobby and Stan were being tallied as washed up but they surprised everyone when they took the U.S. belts from Flyin' Brian Pillman and Tom Zenk. Months later the belts were gone and so was their NWA contract. Cornette and Lane refused to sign but not Bobby. Cornette and Lane left and Bobby found himself going solo.

Bobby comments on the breakup and going solo, "I felt bad when Jim and Stan decided to move on. They wanted me to follow their lead but I couldn't. Our years together were great. I love Jim like a brother and Stan became a close friend. I always wanted to try my hand at a singles title and now here was my chance. I went after world champion Ric Flair but failed. I also wanted a shot at Arn Anderson and his World TV Belt. I know I have the ability to strut my stuff and Anderson was made just for my style."

Bobby soon saw himself a fan favorite having an altercation with Terry Taylor and manager Alexandra York. Bobby wasn't comfortable in his role as a member of The York Foundation and was cheered after having problems with them. The cheers continued when he found himself and Tom Zenk fending off Taylor and Buddy Landel before thoughts of teaming together.

Bobby comments, "It was a weird situation. Zenk, Taylor and myself were trying to become the top contender for Anderson's title. York wanted me to join The York Foundation but I'm not into having a computer telling me how to wrestle. We parted company real fast. If I was wrestling Taylor, out would come Landel. If Zenk wrestled Taylor, out came Landel. Zenk came to help me a few times. At first I was uneasy but soon I realized he was sincere in his efforts, so we shook hands. Now we protect one another."

Eaton stands nose to nose with his current arch-enemy, Terrence Taylor of the thoroughly computerized York Foundation.

The Z-Man grimaces as Beautiful Bobby clamps the headlock on tighter, tighter, TIGHTER!

It was a three man race to see who could defeat Anderson and take the championship. Zenk and Taylor both failed in their quests. Bobby received his chance at Superbrawl on May 19. When Bobby pinned Anderson to win the belt the spotlight was his.

Bobby said, "I knew my time had come. It was now or never. If I blew this opportunity, I knew everybody would scoff saying I'm just a tag team wrestler. I'm a wrestler first. Maybe I do perform mostly in tag teams and this stigma stays. Perhaps now, being the WCW World TV Champion, I'll get the recognition as a singles wrestler. I won't sidestep any challenger. I know Zenk wants a shot. There is Taylor, Flyin' Brian, Barry Windham and of course Anderson is always in the picture. I have this belt but now I want Ric Flair. If this sounds like I'm boasting or getting a big head that's wrong. I'll match my ability against anybody. I know Zenk wants this belt as he has held it before. We are friends but friendship ends when I'm wrestling. Wrestling is a business and I take business seriously. I know there are skeptics who thought my going solo wouldn't get me very far. I proved them wrong. The proof is that I have the gold."

A smile crosses Eaton's lips as he has Taylor screaming for mercy.

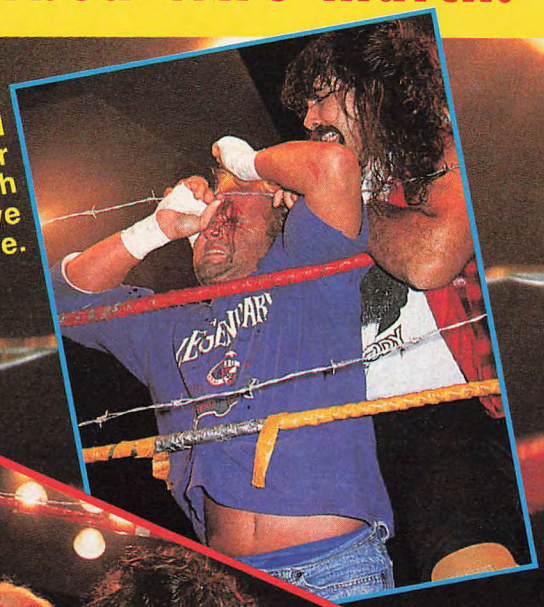
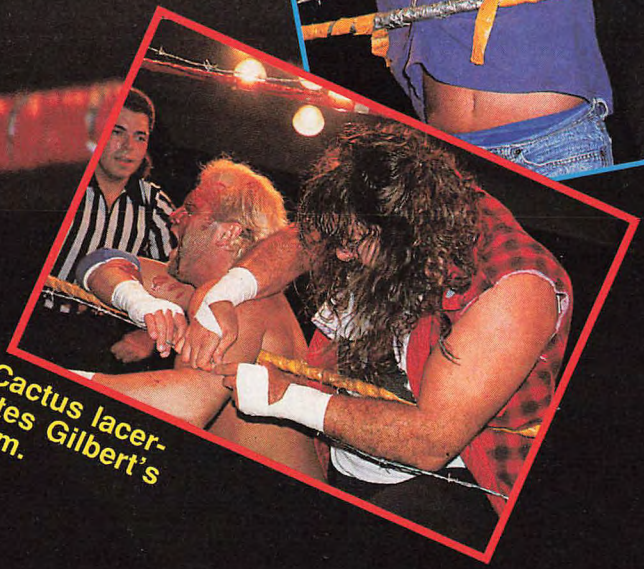
CACTUS JACK vs EDDIE GILBERT!
In a barbed-wire match!

The honors for "Bloodiest Match of 1991" currently go to this barbed wire match between Cactus Jack and "Hot Stuff" Eddie Gilbert.



Cactus uses the barbed wire to tear open the flesh above Gilbert's eye.



Cactus lacerates Gilbert's arm.

As the match ended, Cactus was hung up in the barbed wire by his face. Cactus received over 50 cuts to his face during the match, and needed to be hospitalized afterwards.

The next time Tri-State wrestling (promoted by Joel Goodhart) holds one of these barbed wire matches, they had better have a doctor close by ready to administer blood transfusions!

"IIIIIIIII am the MOUNTIE!"

Dudley Do-wrong terrorizes the WWF!

BEWARE, THE MOUNTIE!

By DON LAIBLE

It already has become wrestling's international conflict. Manager Jimmy Hart was pushed around the ring one too many times by the opposition. The Mountie was only too happy to answer Hart's distress call and bring his interpretation of law and order to the World Wrestling Federation from Canada.

With The Big Bossman still on patrol in WWF rings, a clash between the self-proclaimed peace officers of the promotion is headed for a high noon, one-on-one showdown. The Mountie's methods aren't curtailed by Hart or thus far by WWF officials. Getting the proper results as he sees fit remains his top priority. Kicking butt and taking names later is his specialty.

For a man who professes to represent the law and order community in wrestling, you have to wonder just what his law book reads. The Mountie continues to portray more of the criminal element than anyone else. But, then again, in siding with sneaky Jimmy Hart, what else would you expect? The Mountie (Jacques Rougeau) has begun an all-out war to restore justice in the WWF. Has he condemned the illegal actions taken by Sergeant Slaughter or The Undertaker? Not at all! Probably out of fear and intelligence, there's no way he wants them chasing in his shadow. So why pick on The Big Bossman of Cobb County, Georgia?

In labeling the "dumb hick" as his public enemy number one, obviously it is a personal problem for The Mountie. You have to question Hart and his protege's sanity. Why do all within their power to get a man who is 6' 5" and 300 lbs. (with a bad attitude) angry at you? The Royal Canadian Mountie Police have long taken pride in always getting their man. Surely, by the Mountie's brutality in the ring, you can tell he is not a blanket representation of the force. There have been no public attempts by him to resolve differences with opponents peacefully as would be expected of a lawman.

A cattle prod! That's right, a cattle prod is The Mountie's weapon of choice to render challengers totally helpless after power slamming them to a pinfall. The word is that Rougeau's return to the WWF is not scheduled for a long time—only long enough to end The Big Bossman's career, then it's back to Canada for him. Such a scenario smells like "The Million Dollar Man" Ted DiBiase is still looking for revenge on The Big Bossman.

"That out of shape deputy is a terrible example of someone the fans can worship. Those stupid Americans, what should I expect! The Big Slobman has cleverly tricked the referees into believing he's broken no regulations but my manager is the only honorable judge that I will obey. He sees no excessive force being used in my matches so those naive Americans who thought I would change my ways, I laugh at them," The Mountie arrogantly stated before a match in Binghamton, New York.

Canadians in the WWF have met much injustice, claims the native of Montreal, Quebec. The Mountie further states that he has made the long trip down from Canada to even the score. Jimmy Hart is the person ordering the "eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth" form of justice. Rick "The Model" Martel and Dino Bravo had enough of not receiving a fair shake from the referees, and went home to Quebec on a leave of absence from the organization to achieve better concentration on their game plans.

If you listen to him long enough, The Mountie has enough stories to tell, however one-sided they are. He would like nothing less than to cause you, the fans, to shed tears for him. By no stretch of the imagination is The Mountie an angel. Authority has gone to his head. He's hiding behind the uniform he wears. Jimmy Hart constantly tells him that he is above any law. You can't help but wonder if The Mountie is an outcast in his home province, as (thus far) he has yet to make any friends in the WWF aside from Jimmy and those under contract to him.

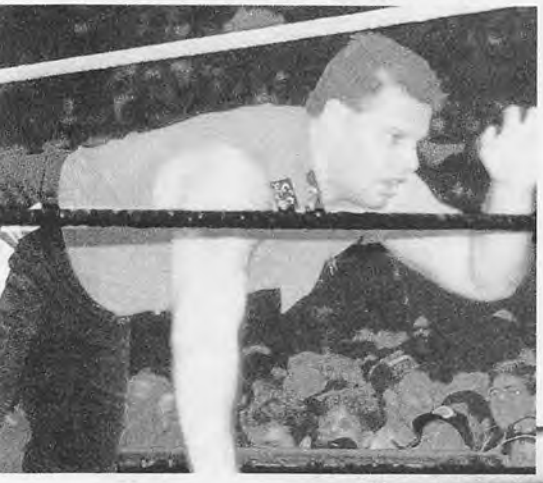
The Mountie is so stunned by Bossman's punches that he thinks even the corner turnbuckle pad might hit him!



No one knows why the WWF allows The Mountie to bring the cattle prod to ringside during his matches. After roughing up his foes, The Mountie finds great pleasure in watching their bodies jolt off the canvas when hit with the weapon. He has it down to a science. He knocks the breath clean out of the opposition. After climbing to the top turnbuckle and grabbing a handful of hair from the back of his opponent's head, The Mountie has yet to have anyone get up after leaping forward and drilling his right knee into their spine. The man on the receiving end gets flattened face-first to the canvas. Then, as if it is necessary, The Mountie punctuates his victory with a running powerslam.

Not a hint of interest is shown by The Mountie toward securing a match with Hulk Hogan or any other recognized WWF champion. He's on a one-man crusade. He always gets his man. There is no slowing him down. Rougeau will travel wherever to be in the same building as The Big Bossman.

While both were appearing on the same show in Rockford, Illinois, a confrontation that couldn't wait for the ring came awfully close to a full-fledged war in the arena's hallway between the locker rooms and the aisle leading to the "square circle." It resembled a scene out of a science fiction movie. No words were exchanged. Eye contact by both wrestlers was enough to spark the action. The Big Bossman pulled

The Mountie claims to represent law and order. Be sure that his law book, however, is distinctly his own!

The Mountie is so mean that even his fellow Canadians have stopped rooting for him.

his night stick from his belt into a striking position. The Mountie held up his cattle prod ready for a duel. Jimmy Hart hid behind his protege with his head peeking out for a view. Before a collision erupted, The Texas Tornado and Tugboat Thomas heard Hart's screams. Once on the scene, they convinced The Big Bossman to take an opposite route to the ring.

What a cruel man The Mountie is. During a match it becomes routine for him to work over a specific body part on his opponent. By the contest's end, pinning his foe appears to be the humanitarian thing to do. He puts them out of their misery by pinning them. When tangling with Tito Santana, it was Santana's left knee that took a beating. Knee drops, spinning toe holds and kicks to his hamstring muscles damaged Tito. Santana couldn't stand up without holding on to the ring ropes for leverage. Then, masterfully, as Hart distracted the official, The Mountie zapped Tito's limb with electrical current. Even with that victory The Mountie did not appear happy. Only causing pain to The Big Bossman will bring a smile to the Mountie's face.

Not since his contests with Hulk Hogan has the Bossman faced such a determined opponent. It's obvious he doesn't approve of The Mountie's cocky attitude. So far he has had no choice but to live with it. Until Jimmy Hart says enough is enough, The Mountie has sworn to give out citations to all challengers. And he's not making it easy for his fellow Canadian citizens to side with him.

They don't join in "USA" chants but clearly view him as an outcast who is giving other Canadian athletes a bad reputation. But what's next when The Big Bossman is no longer number one on his "hit" parade? Could we see The Mountie #2 (Jacques older brother Raymond) emerge on the WWF scene and attempt to double shock The Rockers or Bushwhackers?

Dustin's huge size is clearly evident in this picture, in which he towers over Beautiful Bobby Eaton (who isn't exactly puny himself).

Dustin's a chip off the ol' block

THE NATURAL SHOOTS FOR SUPER STARDOM!

By FRANK AMATO

My father was the son of a plumber. I'm the son of a former superstar wrestler and wrestling legend. I'm following in my dad's footsteps but I'm not trying to fill his boots. Those are mighty big boots to fill," says Dustin Rhodes. Dustin's father is Dusty Rhodes, in case you didn't know. Who is Dusty Rhodes? For you newcomers, he was the most popular wrestler ever to appear for the National Wrestling Alliance. During his heyday Dusty rivaled Bruno Sammartino, Verne Gagne, Pedro Morales and Hulk Hogan in popularity. Any wrestling magazine could devote a full issue on Dusty's career and exploits. He was three times the NWA World Heavyweight Champion.

They call Dustin "The Natural." He's big (6' 5" and 265 pounds), has blond hair and wears cowboy wrestling boots just like his dad did. Dusty was always ready for a fight and so is Dustin. It doesn't matter against who or for what. The fighting blood is there. Dustin knows the Rhodes name makes him a target. His dad had more feuds than a dog has fleas. This is a situation Dustin knows he must deal with. He can't get away from it and he's not trying to.

Dustin says, "There are wrestlers who feuded with my father through the years who think they will get even with him through me because my dad is retired. I can deal with that. Ill feelings run deep. Heck, I'm a Texan born and bred. We Texans are a fighting breed. My dad always taught me to fight for what is right. Stand up for your principles. Don't let anyone push you around."

Dustin seems to have a more serious side to his outwardness than his father. Dusty was noted for his famous smile and rich Texas drawl. When Dusty was serious the world knew and you gave him a wide berth. Dusty's ready smile always disappeared the moment

Dustin "The Natural" Rhodes is a positive thinker. He says it's only a matter of time before his wearing a gold strap around his waist.

Rhodes is from Texas and Texans LOVE to brawl. It's in their blood.

he entered the squared circle.

Dustin comments, "You might say my father had his smile and drawl when he spoke during his TV interviews. My father was a master for getting fans worked up for his matches. As for me, I'm more intense. I'm not as easy going. My nature is different, just as my wrestling style is different."

Dustin has been wrestling professionally for three years. As a mere rookie in the NWA he teamed with Kendall Windham (Barry's younger brother) for a few months. When they went their separate ways Dustin wrestled in Florida where he held the Florida State Championship and Florida State Tag Team Championship. After leaving the sunshine state, he headed for the World Class region. Dustin had two ongoing feuds with Mark Youngblood and Gorgeous Gary Young. These feuds showed that Dustin had the gumption to take the fight to his antagonists. All the while Dusty was keeping tabs on Dustin, watching his progress.

After Dusty had been appearing in the WWF a few months, Dustin also found his way there. It seemed only natural for Dustin and Dusty to form a tag team. It didn't happen right away though. It came about through Dusty's then-current arch-enemy Ted DiBiase, The Million Dollar Man. Dustin had been making a steady uphill climb, regularly beating preliminary wrestlers. You could see the vast difference in Dustin's performances since his rookie year. It was obvious DiBiase wanted to get at Dusty, so he targeted Dustin. DiBiase issued a challenge to Dustin that he couldn't last ten minutes with him. Dustin accepted the challenge and Dusty was at ringside to make sure Virgil, DiBiase's hired man, didn't interfere. Dustin did well in the early stages of the match but DiBiase's vast experience had Dustin holding on. Yet, Dustin took everything DiBiase threw at him, avoiding being pinned with Dusty yelling advice and encouragement. Dustin was caught in DiBiase's Million Dollar Sleeper in the last minute of the match. It seemed it was over but Dustin refused to capitulate. When the bell rang Dustin had survived the ten minutes. It was a moral victory for Dustin.

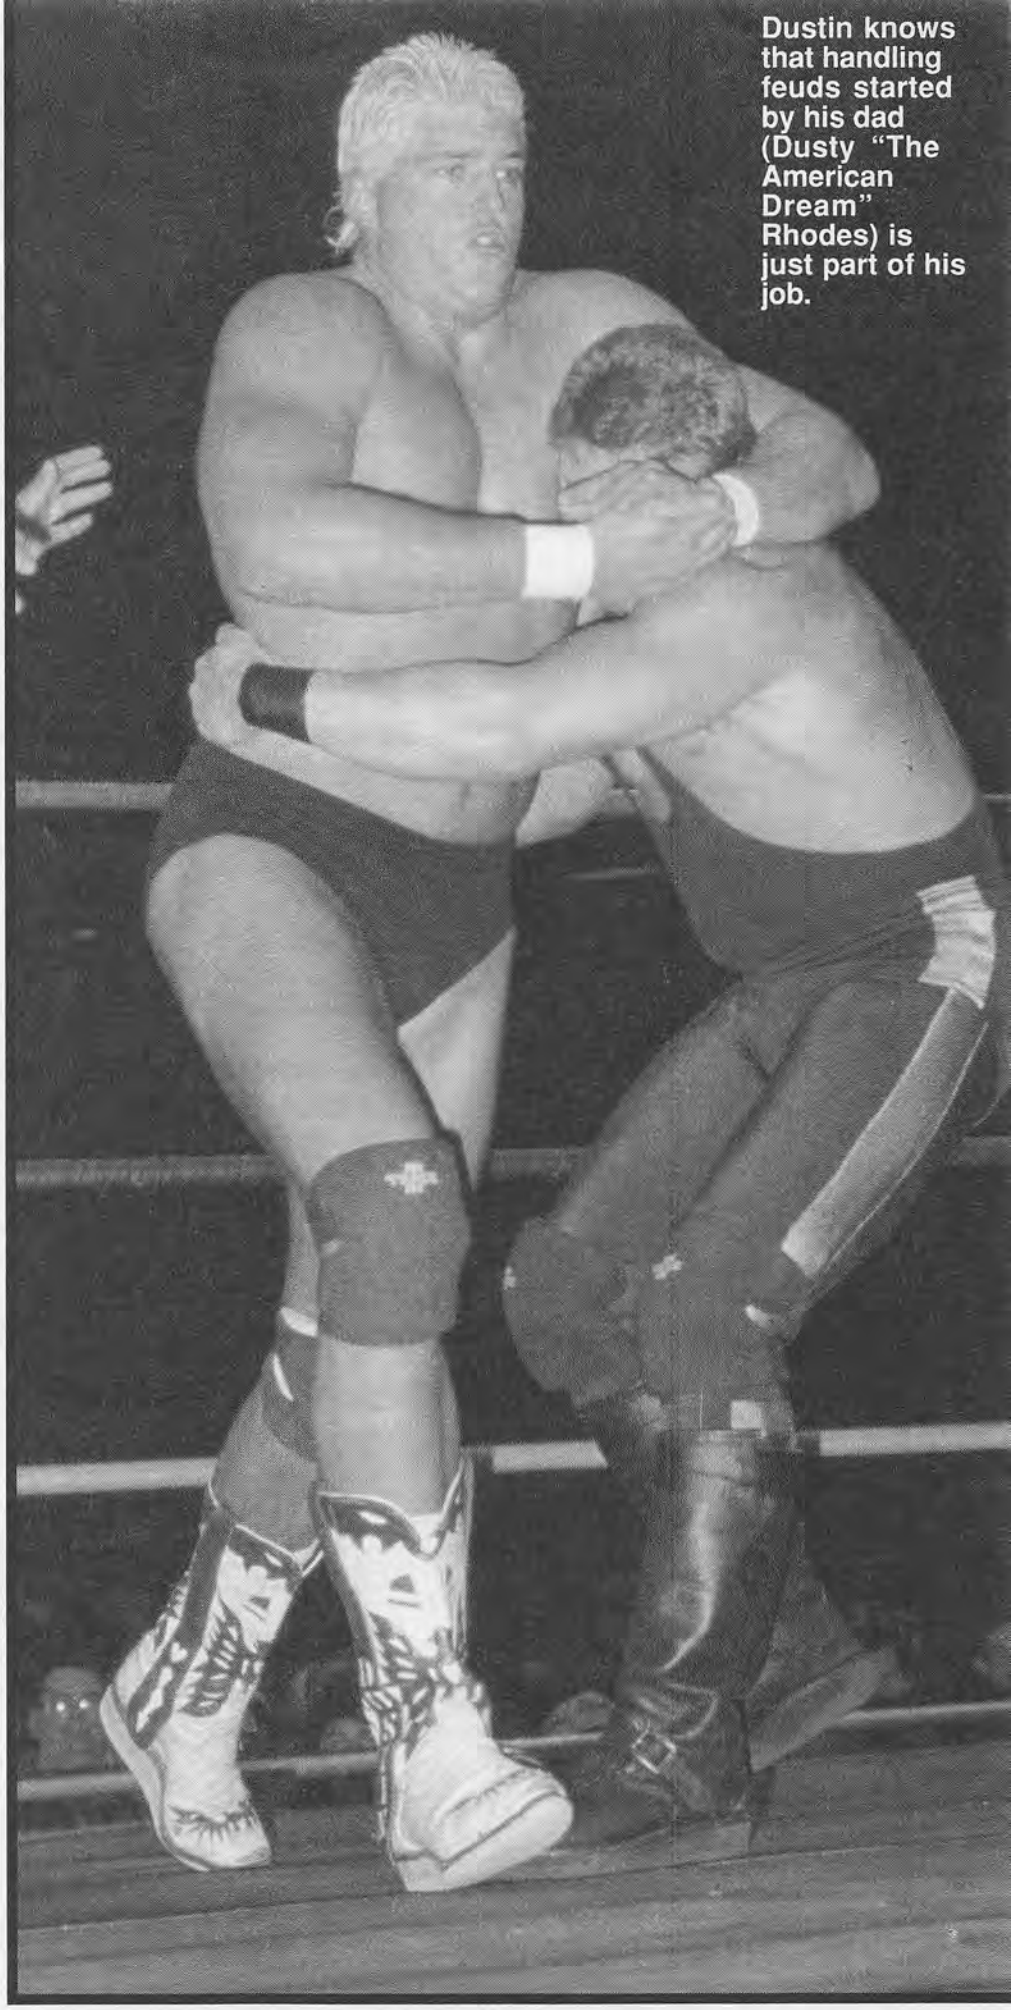
Dustin comments, "I trained for this match with my father. He showed me what DiBiase might do. I would've loved to beat DiBiase but lasting the full ten minutes was equal to a victory. I think I proved I could wrestle the big names and hold my own. DiBiase lost face because he couldn't beat me."

It didn't take DiBiase long to try another tact. On a Brother Love segment DiBiase invited Dustin out and offered him a stack of money to join him. Dustin refused the offer claiming he couldn't be bought. Weeks later Dusty wrestled DiBiase during a special WWF Main Event card with Dustin sitting in a first row seat. During the match DiBiase and Virgil attacked Dustin. Dusty, seeing this, tried to protect Dustin but was also viciously attacked. This led to a series of tag team matches which finally saw Dusty and Dustin fall to DiBiase and Virgil at The Royal Rumble. It was a bitter pill to swallow but none more bitter when Dusty told Dustin he was retiring.

Dustin comments, "I knew my dad was contemplating retiring. He had said so not long after I entered the WWF. He never gave me a date but did say he would know when. I also knew dad had been offered an opportunity to return to the WCW not to wrestle but work with the front office. I felt sad dad was retiring but at least we had the opportunity to team together. I'm very proud that I was dad's last tag team partner."



Dustin knows that handling feuds started by his dad (Dusty "The American Dream" Rhodes) is just part of his job.

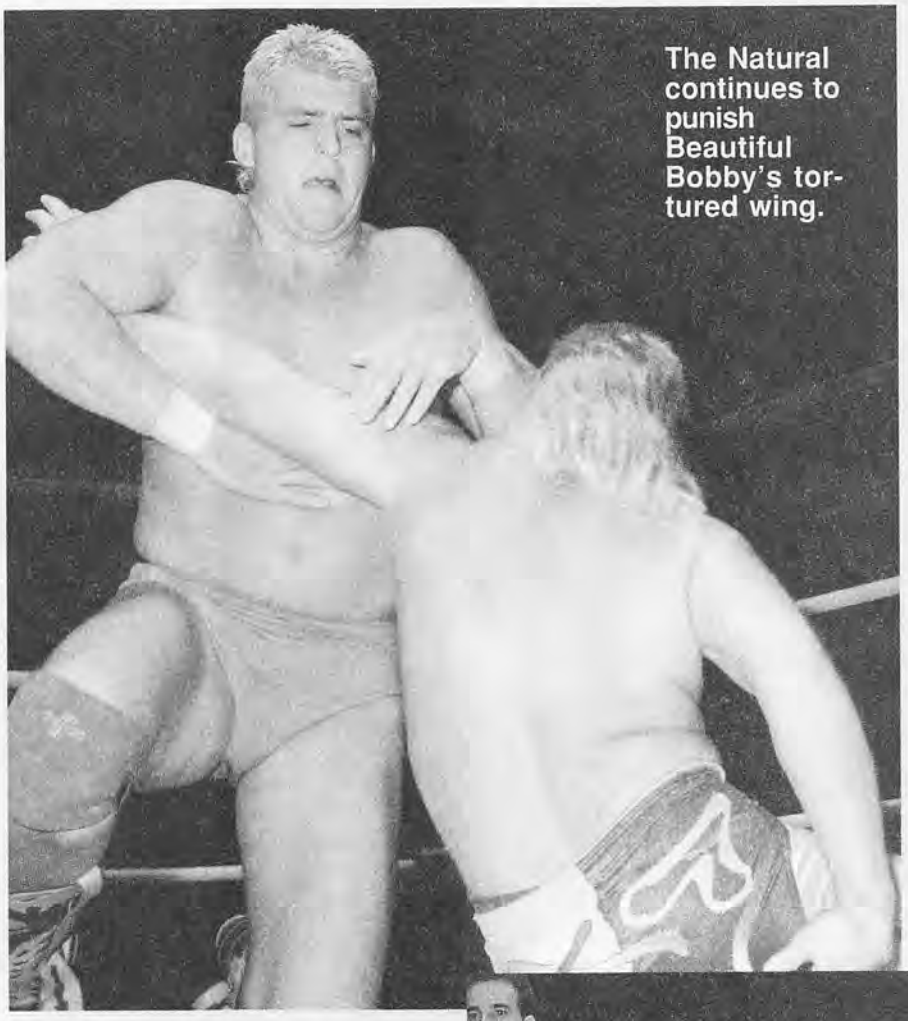
Dustin has returned to WCW, although it was known as the NWA when he first started. This time he is the only Rhodes wrestling. Dusty does color commentary with Jim Ross and conducts interviews with his own segment called "Bull Drop In." Again having the names Rhodes has made Dustin a target. One wrestler who has aimed his venom at Dustin is Stan "The Lariat" Hansen. Hansen was quick to call out Dustin. Dustin appeared to tell Hansen he's ready anytime.

Says Dustin, "I know this will happen often. I can't shy away from it. I know what Hansen is like. I've seen him wrestle often enough. He's a champion in his own right. I'm a mere beginner in wrestling and I'm shooting for superstardom. If I'm to become one I must wrestle Hansen and many like him. You don't become a superstar playing it safe. Like I said earlier about wrestlers who want me because of the Rhodes name. If Hansen wants me I'm not hard to find."

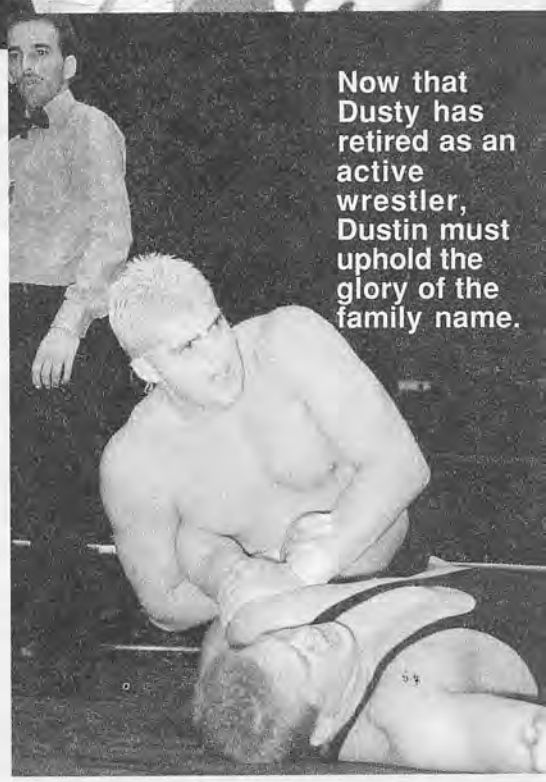


The Natural continues to punish Beautiful Bobby's tortured wing.

Dustin is not in any championship picture right now but that could change with time. Dustin is willing to wrestle anyone who wears a belt. Namely WCW · World Heavyweight Champion Ric Flair.

Dustin comments, "What can I say about Flair that hasn't been written before. I've seen Flair wrestle my dad countless times. I'd been there at a few of them. Flair is a master technician who knows how to capitalize on mistakes. He tries to get into your mind. I know I'm not ready for Flair but I won't refuse a match if it comes. Wrestling Flair will give me needed experience. Heck, who knows, I could get lucky. Right now I'm trying to make my way. I've been teaming with some wrestlers and perhaps I may form a tag team. I thought I had a partner in Ricky Morton but he's decided to turn his back on fans and me. Did you see him walk out on me when we wrestled Terry Taylor and One Man Gang? We could've won that match but Alexandra York whispered in his ear and he took a walk leaving me to fend for myself. I have news for you Ricky, you can walk or run but you can't hide. I'm going to find you and show what being a turncoat gets you."

Dustin had been offered an opportunity to join The York Foundation just prior to Superbrawl. Alexandra York told Dustin she had a proposition which also could be on a personal basis. Dustin told her he would see her the morning of Superbrawl. Obviously Dustin turned her down because at Superbrawl Mr. Curtis Hughes, a member of the York Foundation, tried to help Taylor beat Dustin. It backfired and Dustin pinned Taylor.



Now that Dusty has retired as an active wrestler, Dustin must uphold the glory of the family name.

Says Dustin, "I'm my own man. I don't need any computer to tell me how to wrestle. I'll make my own way. The Natural is ready to make his mark. I'm here to stay and continue the Rhodes tradition."

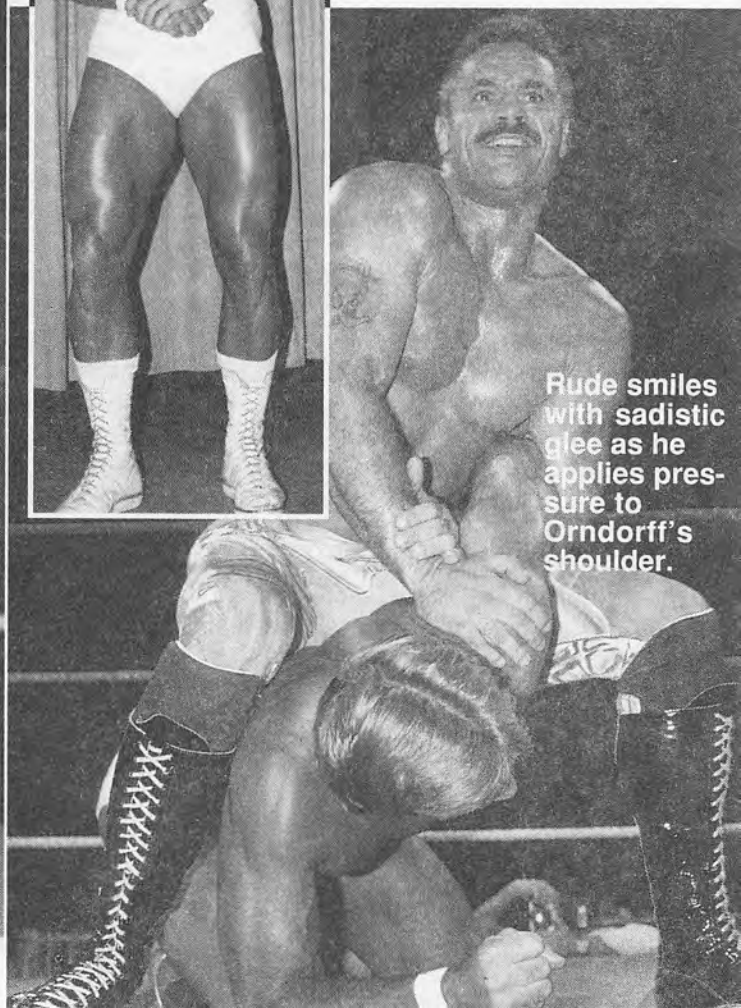
PAUL ORNDORFF vs RICK RUDE!

"Ravishing" Rick Rude prepares for battle by posing for the crowd. Naturally, the women all swooned with joy.

His opponent for the evening was Paul Orndorff, who is known to his many wrestling fans as "Mr. Wonderful."



Rude smiles with sadistic glee as he applies pressure to Orndorff's shoulder.

No Wild, No Wildlife.

Life in the wild can be pretty tough these days. Without the necessary ancient-forest habitat to live in, some species like the northern spotted owl of the Pacific Northwest are severely threatened.

The northern spotted owl makes its home in the ancient forest of Washington, Oregon and Northern California. Due to the destruction of these forests through decades of heavy logging on both private and public lands, the northern spotted owl is threatened with extinction.

At the Sierra Club, we believe that these owls and the ancient forest ecosystems they depend on need our help. The Sierra Club's work to permanently protect our ancient forests also helps preserve the habitat of the northern spotted owl, giving them the range they need to help their population grow.

To learn more about our work protecting the forest habitats of endangered species such as the northern spotted owl, please write us at:

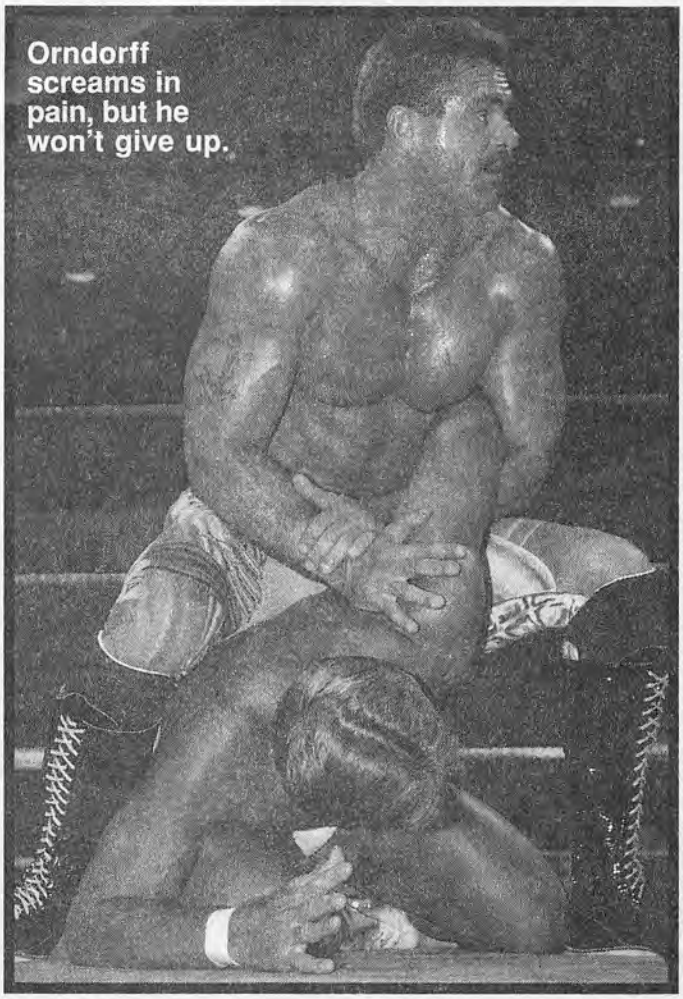
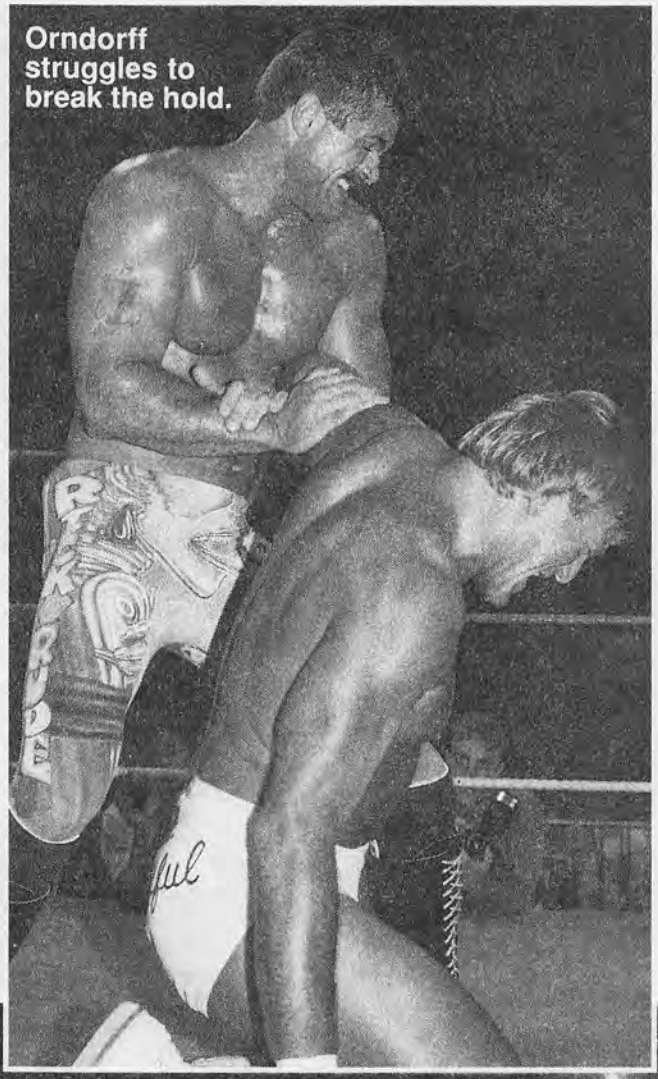
Rude and Orndorff are both stunned as they land simultaneous blows.

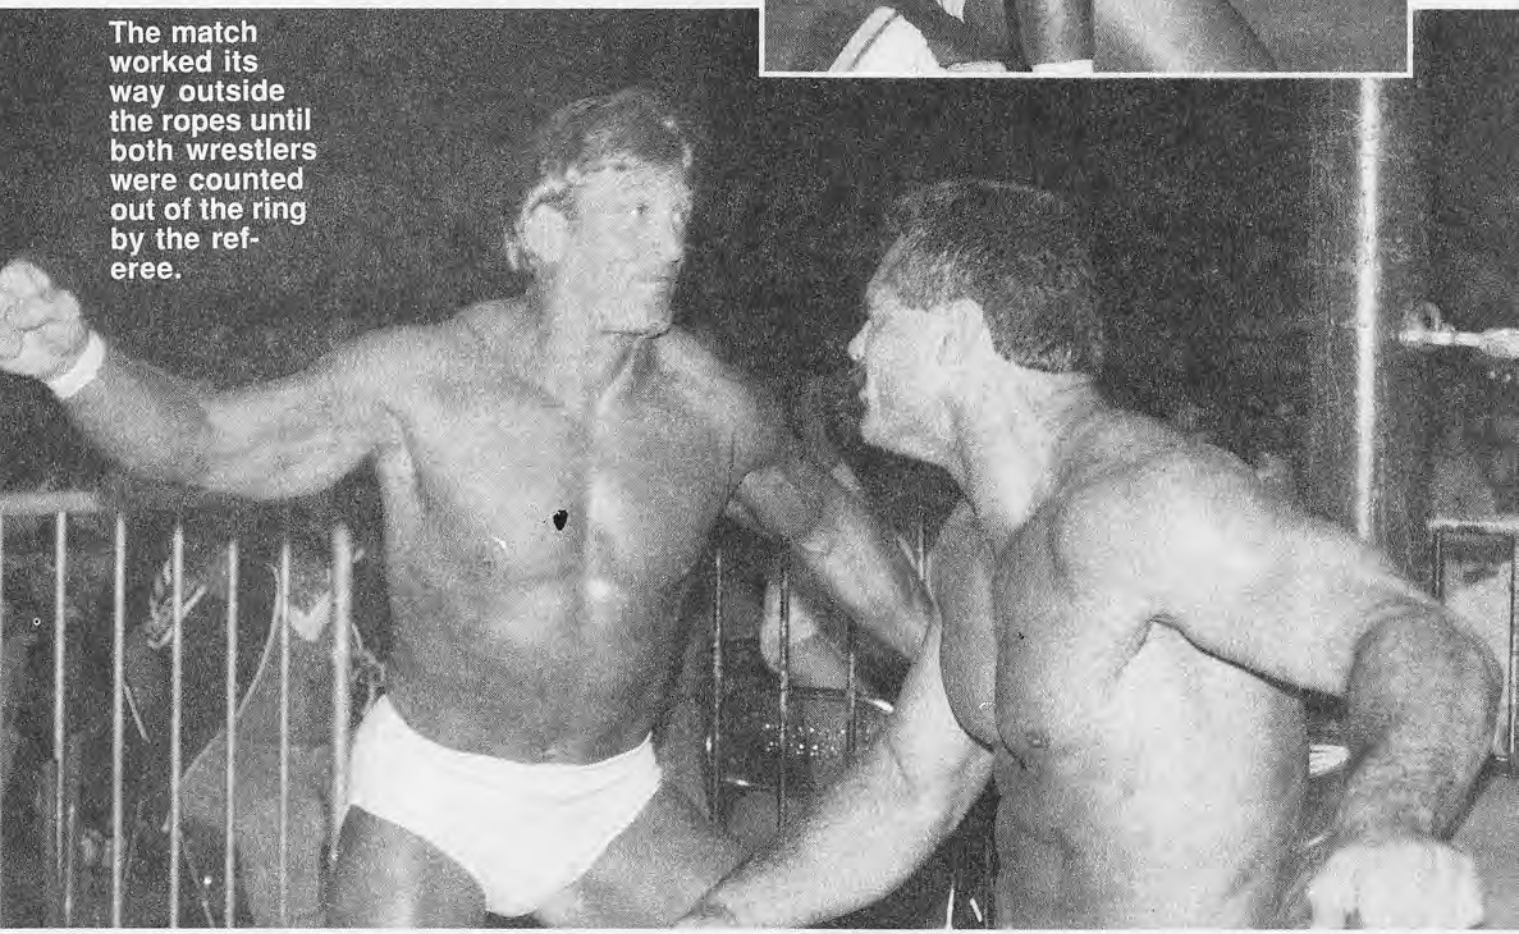
Rude taunts the crowd, "Want me to break his arm? Want me to break his arm?"



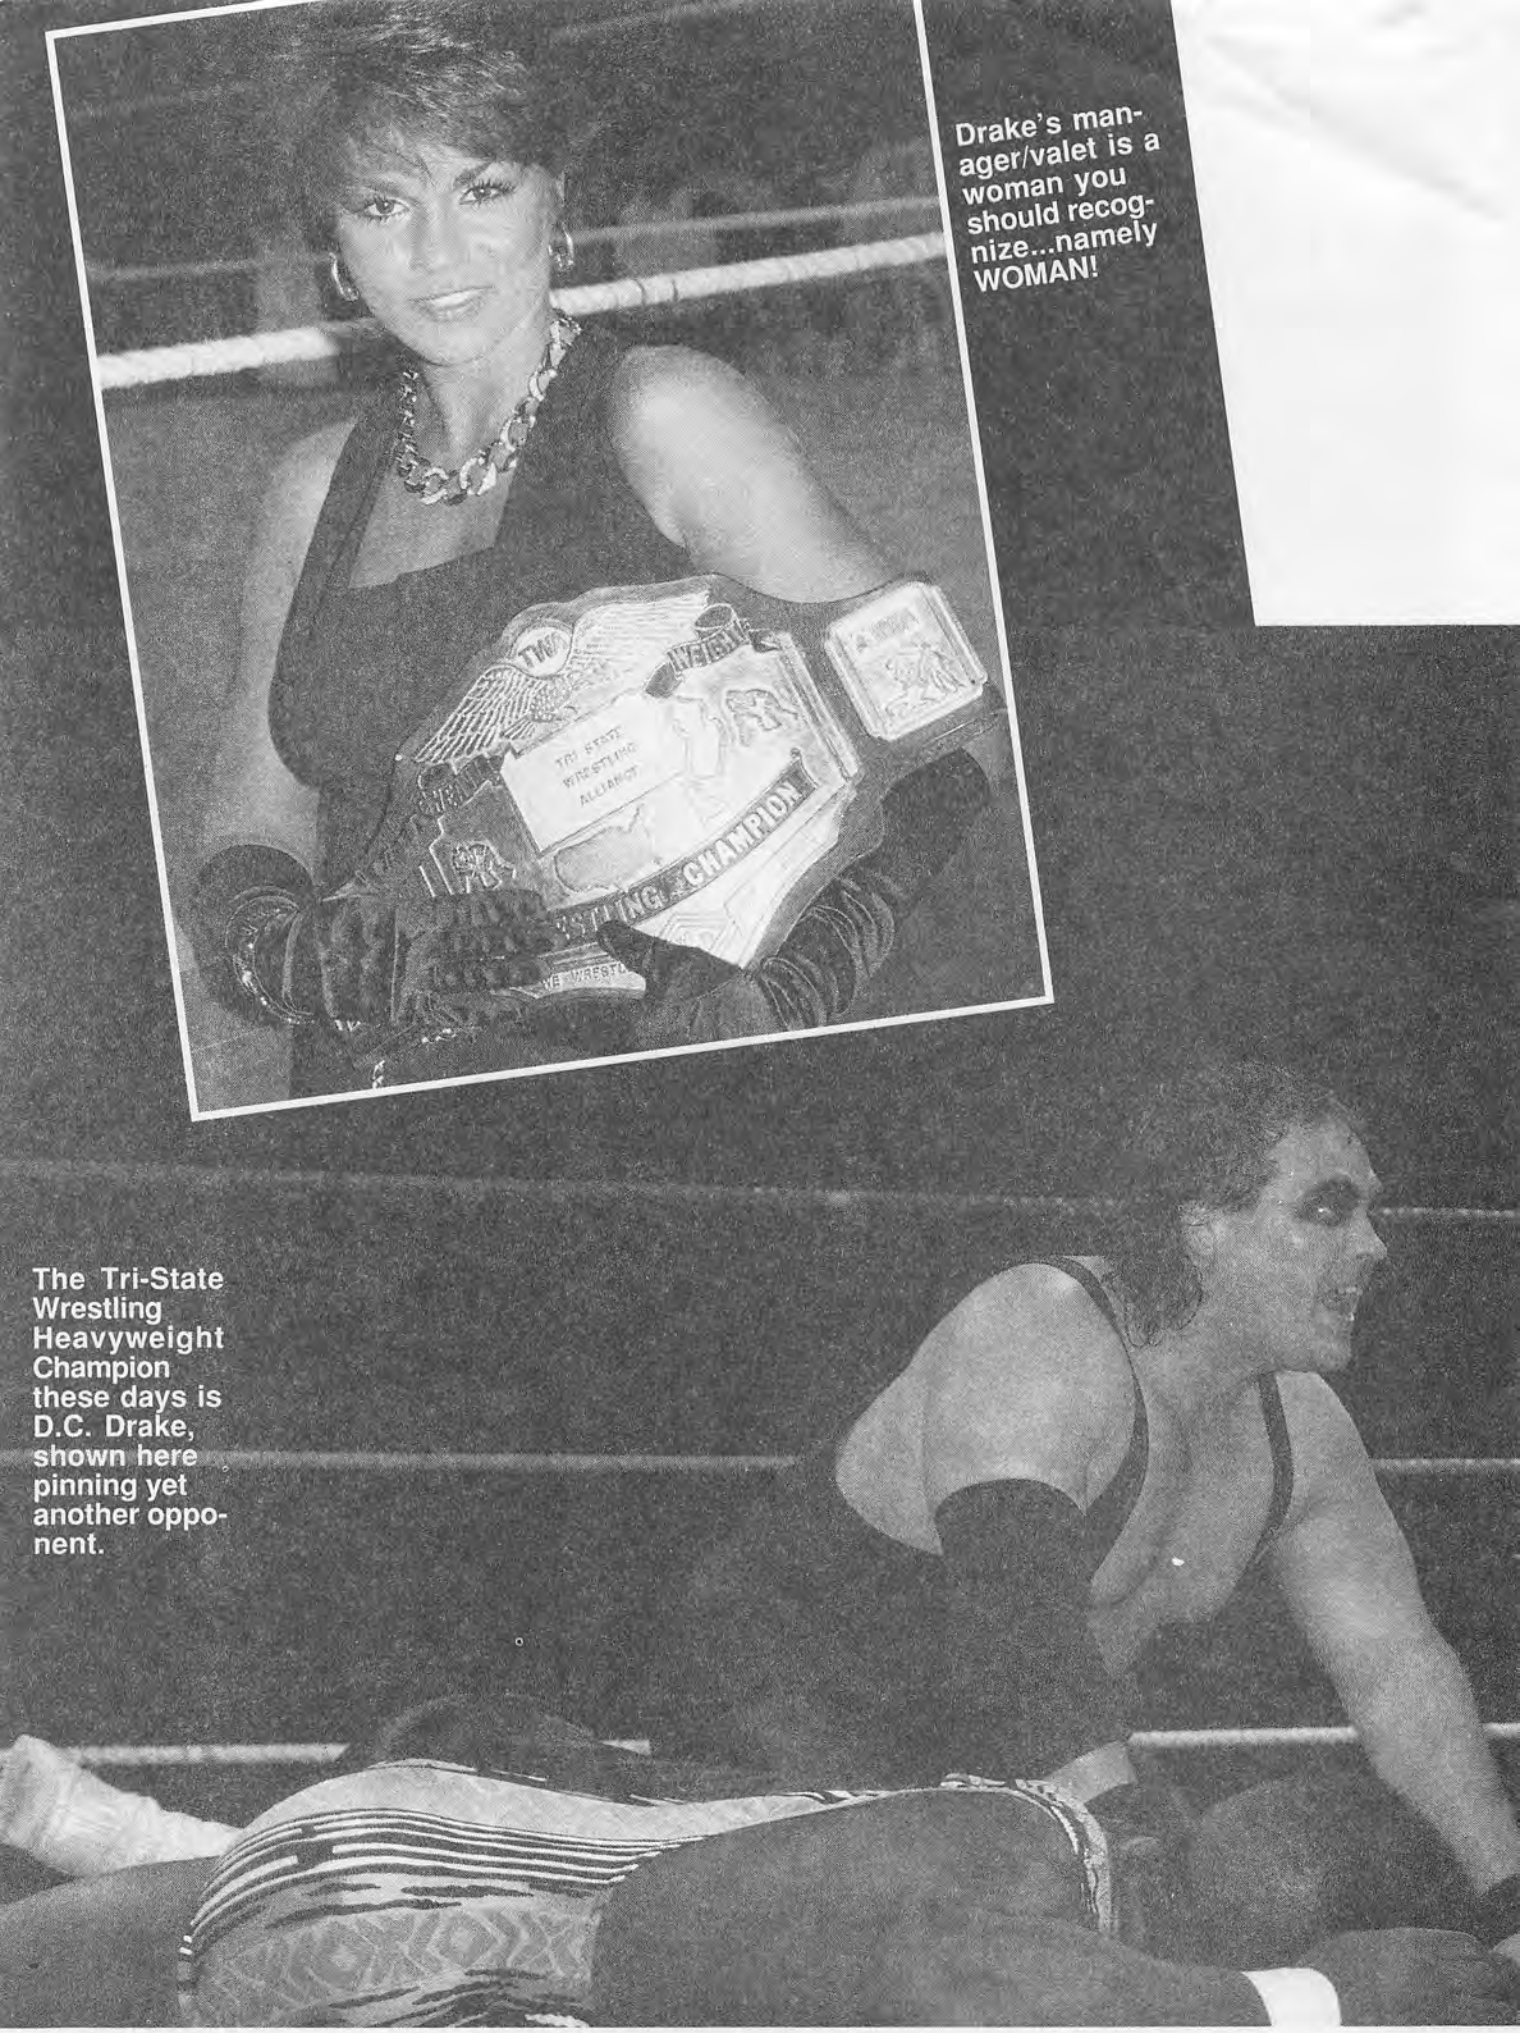
Orndorff screams in pain, but he won't give up.



Orndorff struggles to break the hold.



The match worked its way outside the ropes until both wrestlers were counted out of the ring by the referee.

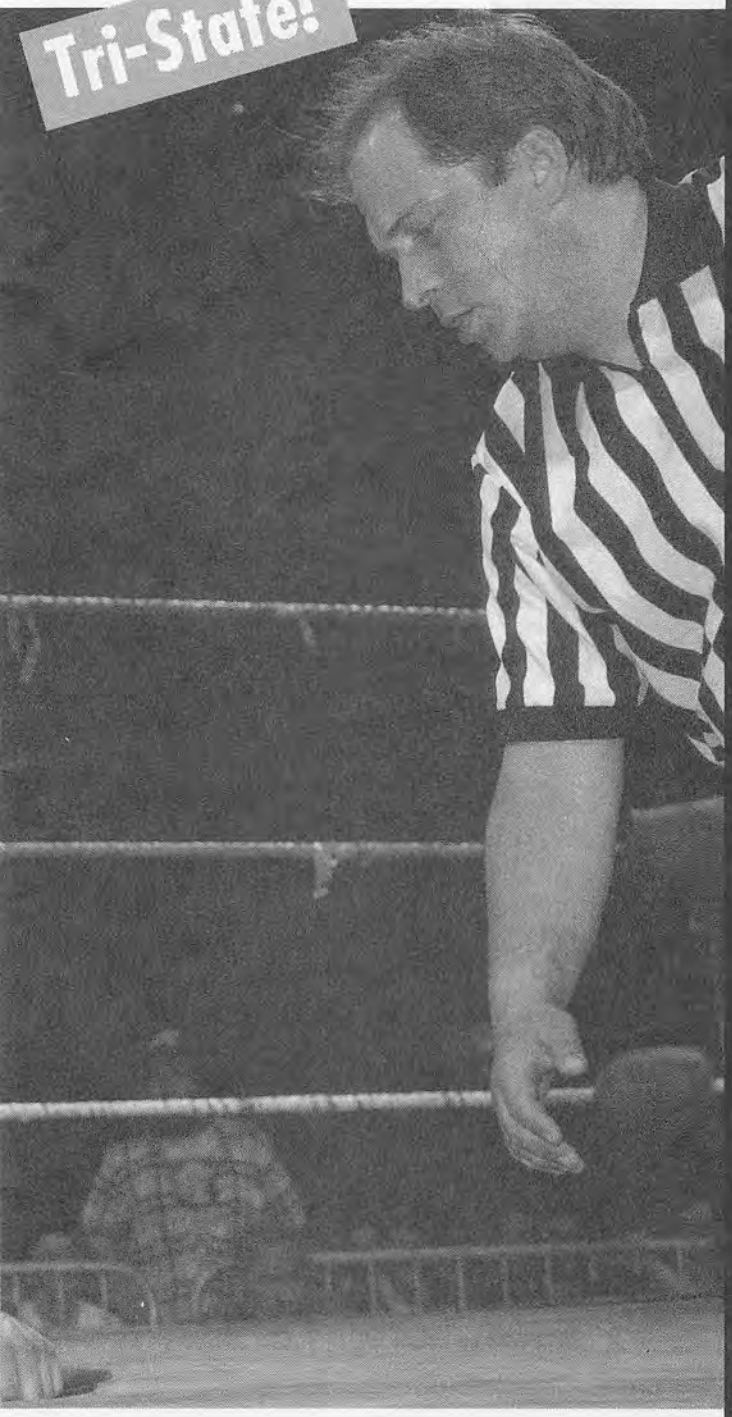


Drake's manager/valet is a woman you should recognize...namely WOMAN!

The Tri-State Wrestling Heavyweight Champion these days is D.C. Drake, shown here pinning yet another opponent.

D.C. DRAKE & WOMAN!

Champ and valet terrorize Tri-State!



Drake's wrestling technique consists of no-holds-barred brawling, as is evidenced by this chair-attack upon a foe outside the ring.

Woman contributes to the effort by flirting with Drake's opponents, thus distracting them from the job at hand.

Woman proudly holds Drake's Tri-State belt as she watches her man battle.

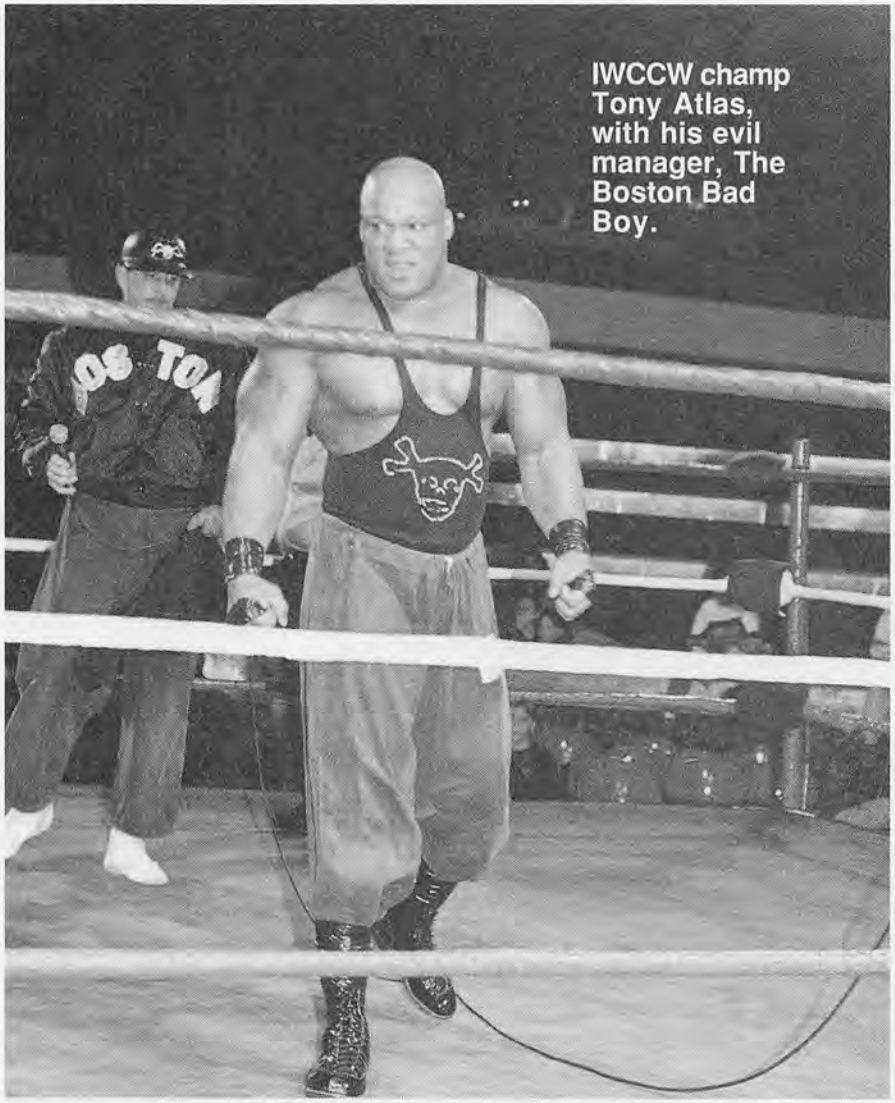
the IWCCW were champion Tony Atlas, tag team champions The Million Dollar Babes, exciting father and son combination Ivan and Scott Putski, Curley Moe, the "Ravishing" Rick Rude and the Honky Tonk Man. It's been quite a few years since so many big stars appeared on the same card and promoter Tommy Dee has to be commended for bringing such an outstanding line-up to the N.Y. Metropolitan area.

Steve Austin is the new WCW T.V. champion. Austin beat Bobby Eaton for the title. Austin, incidentally, has dropped vivacious Veronica as his valet and is "auditioning" new ladies for the plum role.

Tugboat is now known as Typhoon. He is now managed by Jimmy Hart. Together with the Earthquake, they are known as the Natural Disasters.



IWCCW champ Tony Atlas, with his evil manager, The Boston Bad Boy.

Speaking of ladies, Diamond Dallas Page always has a bevy of beauties on his arm. His Diamond Dolls have to be some of the lovliest ladies in the world. Right now Page's girls are escorting the Diamond Stud everywhere he goes.

"The Deparadoes," Dick Murdoch and "Dirty" Dick Slater are a throwback to the wrestlers of old. Both men love to fight and they enjoy an honest to goodness brawl! Kevin Sullivan seems to be getting more demented as the days go by.

He not only looks but acts the way he did when he ruled the Florida scene during the mid-eighties. His stable of Black Bart, Black Blood and the One Man Gang are three of the wildest men in the WCW.

Owen Hart is now wrestling in Germany after a successful stay in Mexico. Hart is expected to return to the WCW when his German tour is complete.

What was Tito Santana doing at an IWCCW taping? "Arriba" Santana jumped into the ring and challenged IWCCW champion Tony Atlas to a match. Rumor has it that the IWCCW has a working agreement with the WWF.

Dino Bravo and Rick Martel will be wrestling in Puerto Rico in July on the big Capital Sports promotion Anniversary card. Both men have set their sights on winning Carlos Colon's WWC Universal belt.

The Honky Tonk Man was a big hit with the Parkville (Brooklyn, N.Y.) Cardinals. Honky visited with the little league team before a game at the Parkville Complex on 65th Street and 8th Avenue in Brooklyn and gave the boys quite a few pointers. After throwing out the first ball, the Honky Tonk Man stayed in the dugout and watched as the Cardinals won 7-4.

That's all for now. See you at Ringside!

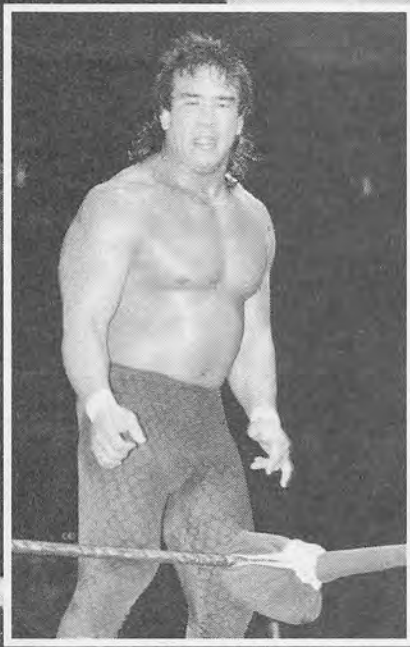
STEAMBOAT IS BACK!

The Dragon Returns to the WWF!

After several years of semi-retirement, Rickey "The Dragon" Steamboat is back in the spotlight.

Steamboat has signed a contract with the World Wrestling Federation. Judging by his first few matches with

The long layoff doesn't seem to have hurt Steamboat's wrestling technique. He's tougher than ever!



After a couple of years of being in semi-retirement, Rickey "The Dragon" Steamboat is back wrestling in the WWF.

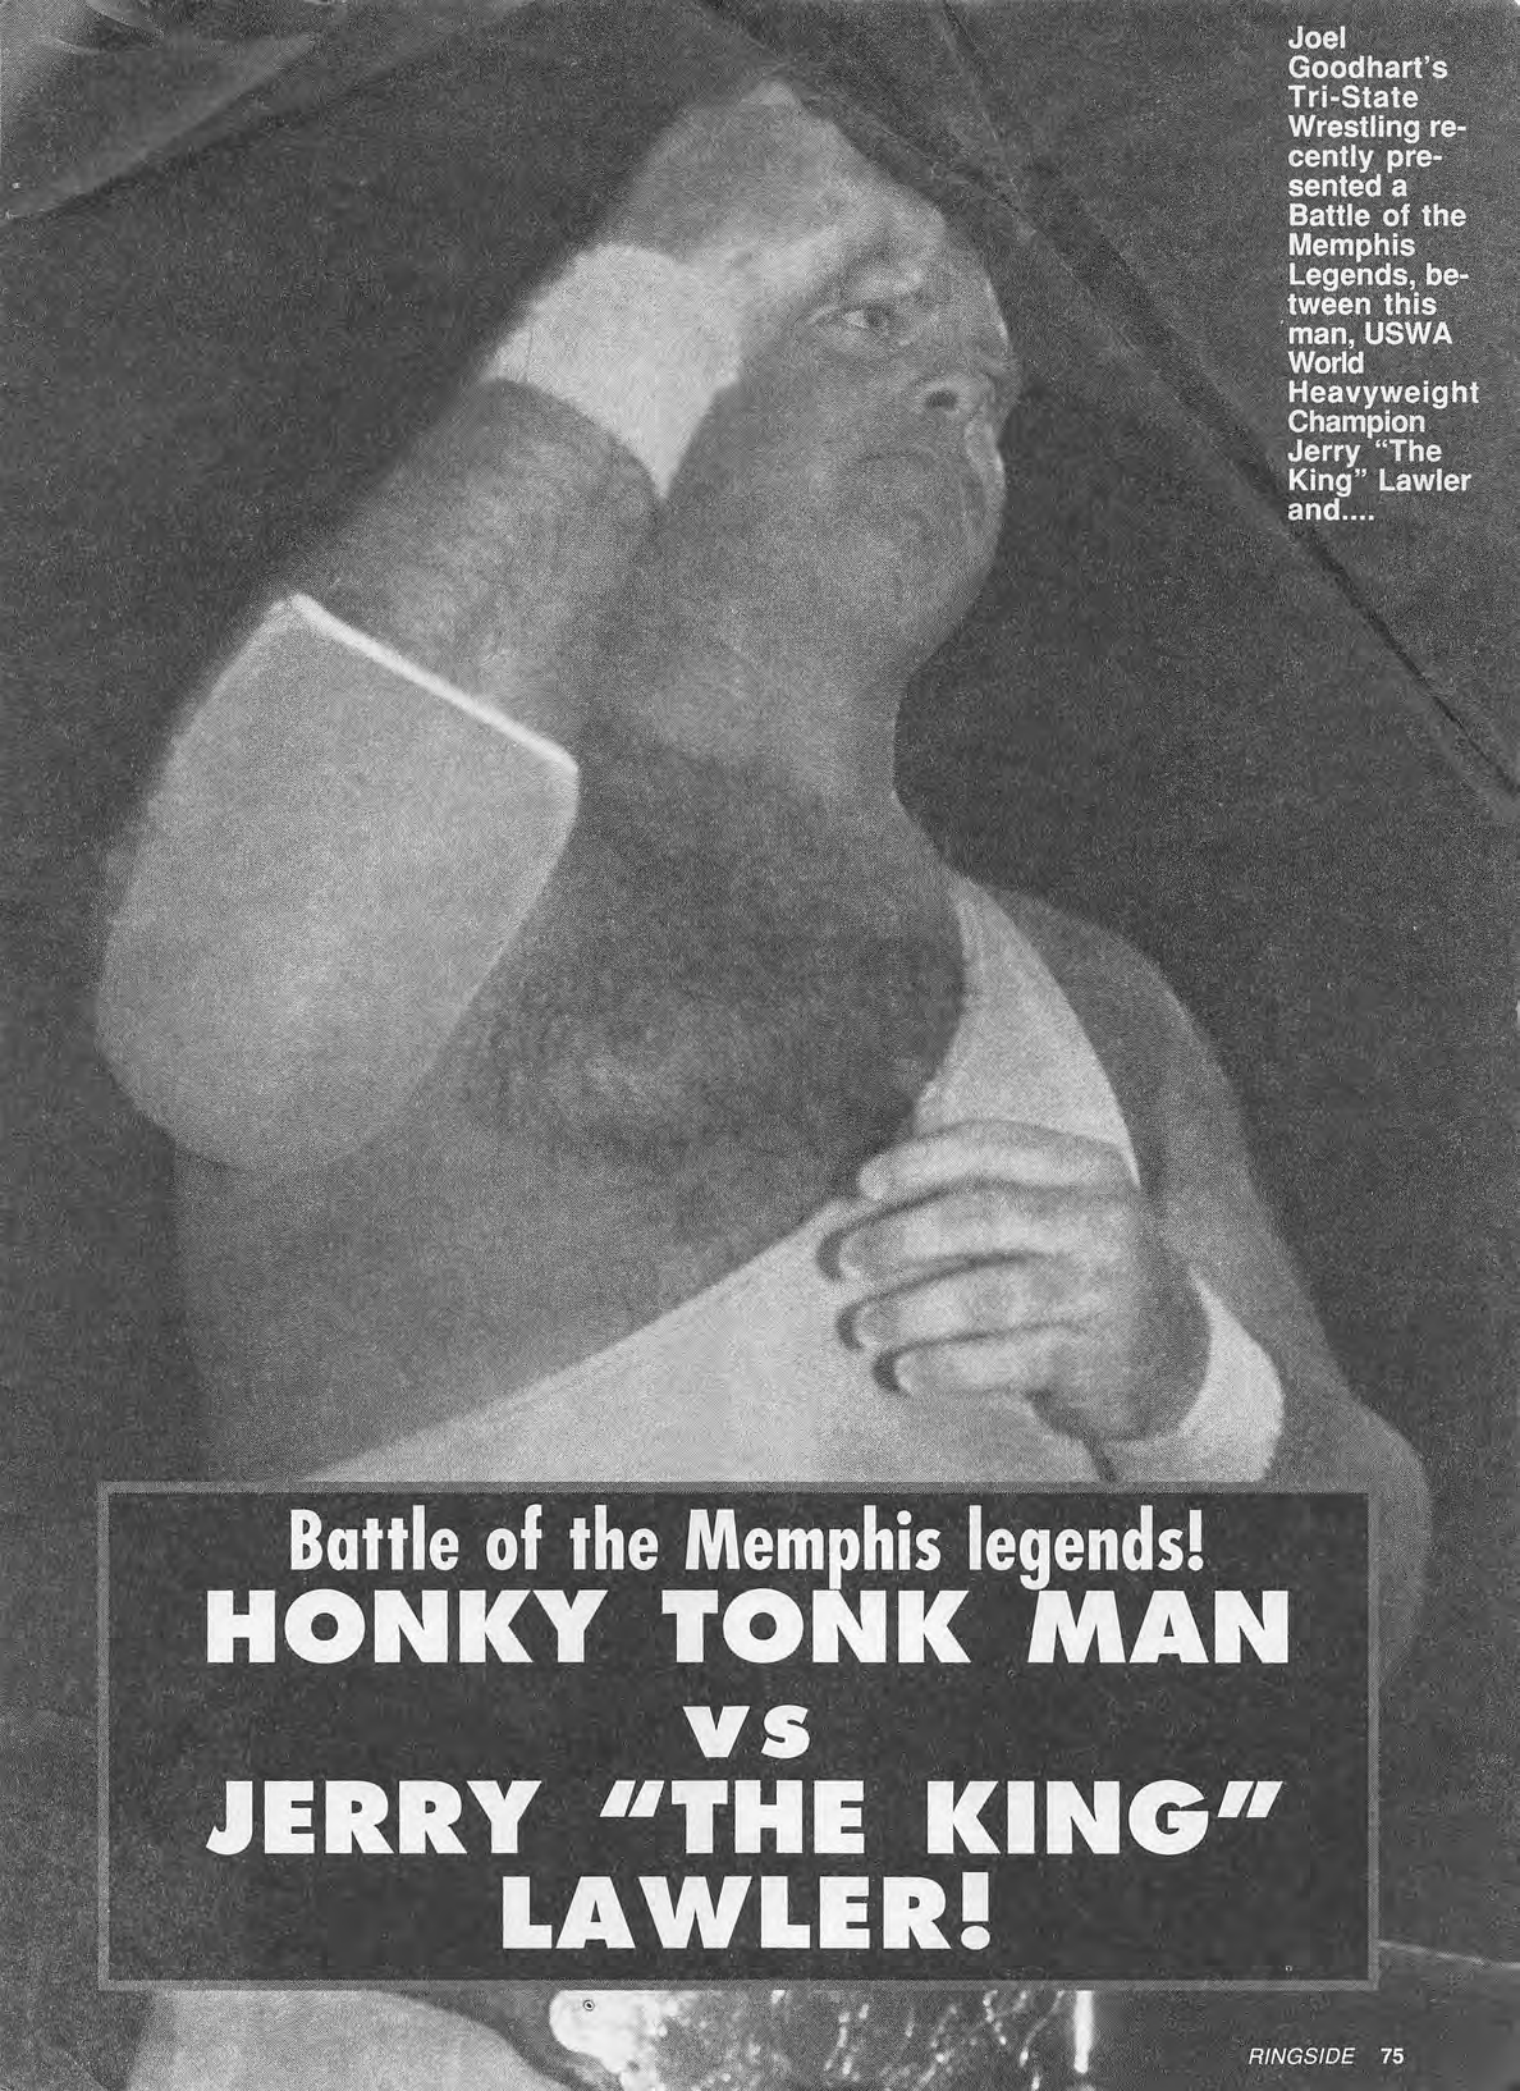
that organization, the former NWA Heavyweight Champion is in better shape than ever.

Steamboat's latest gimmick is breathing fire, just like a real dragon. If you haven't seen him do it yet, check it out. It's awesome.

Look for the Dragon to be a contender for a belt real soon!

Steamboat is a high-flyin' Dragon as he prepares to flatten Haku.

Before each match, the Dragon breathes fire. (Kids, don't try this at home.)

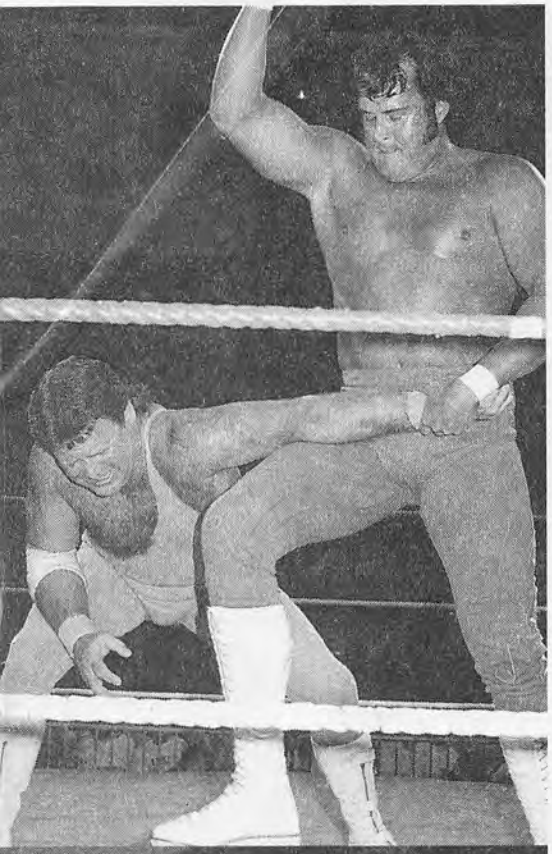


Joel Goodhart's Tri-State Wrestling recently presented a Battle of the Memphis Legends, between this man, USWA World Heavyweight Champion Jerry "The King" Lawler and....

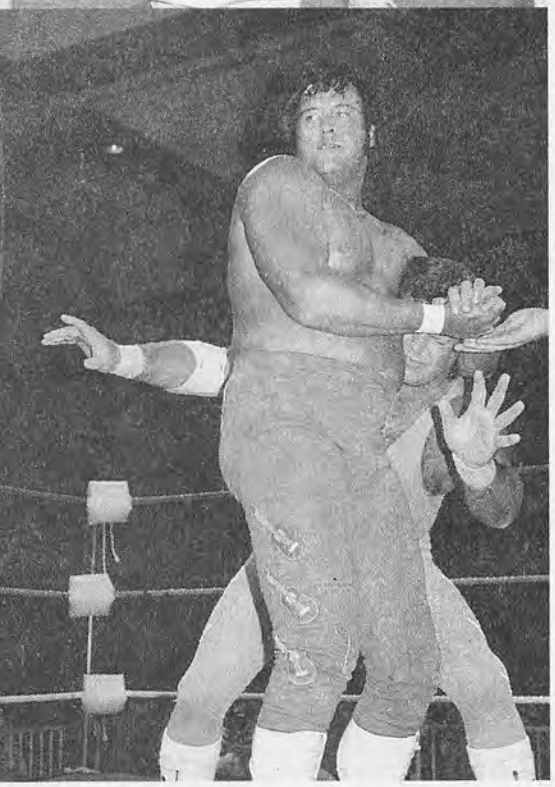
Battle of the Memphis legends!

HONKY TONK MAN vs JERRY "THE KING" LAWLER!

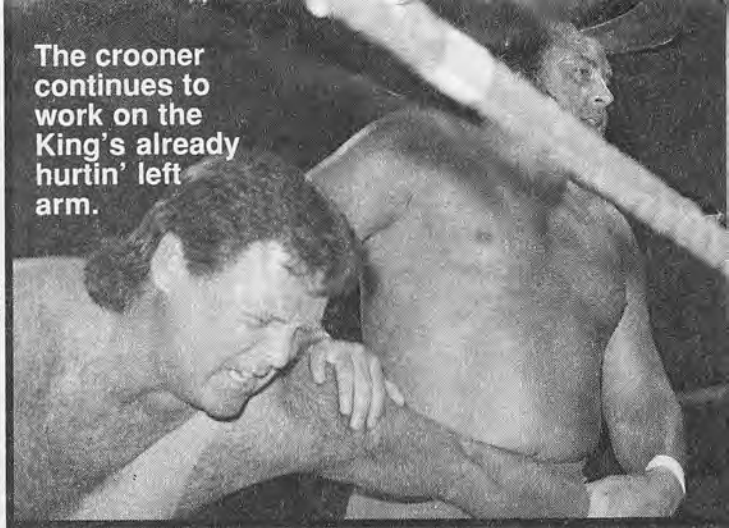
...this man, Memphis country singer, The Honky Tonk Man (shown here singing his hit single, "Hunka Hunka Honky Love.")



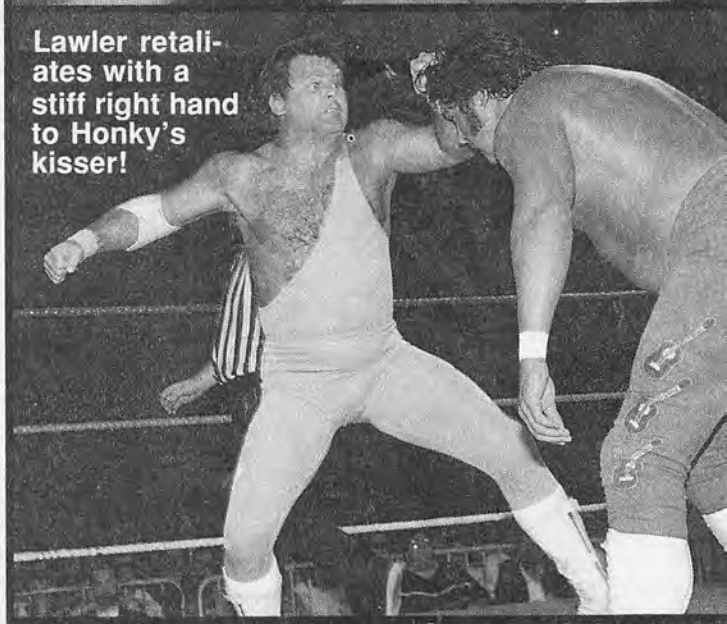
Honky's about to drop an elbow across Lawler's locked elbow!



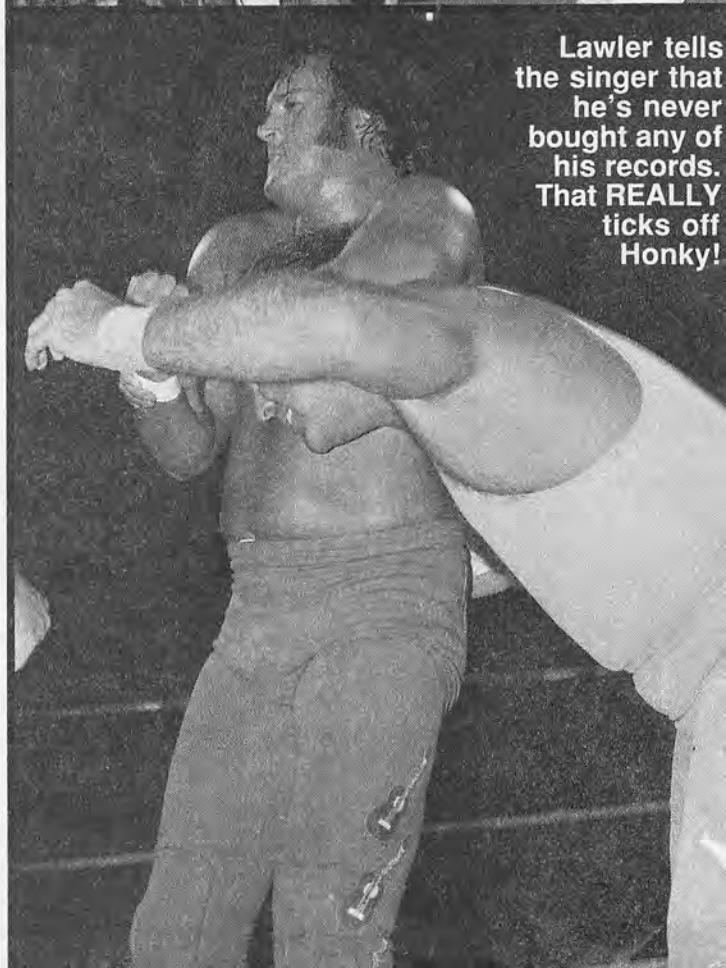
Honky clamps a headlock around Lawler's crunched skull.



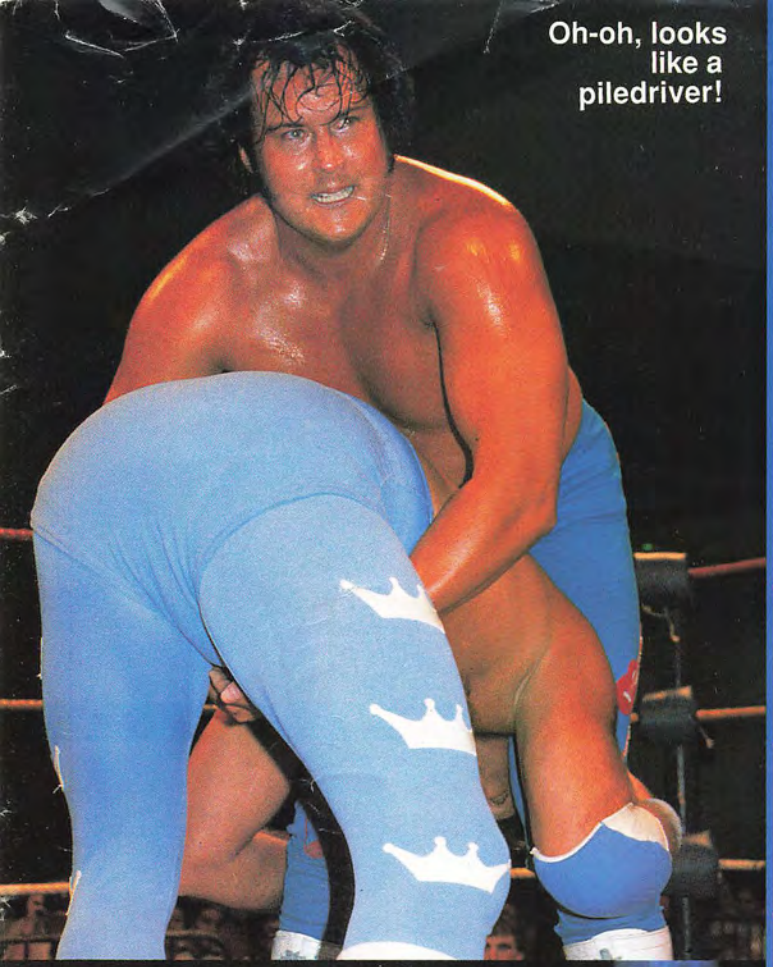
The crooner continues to work on the King's already hurtin' left arm.



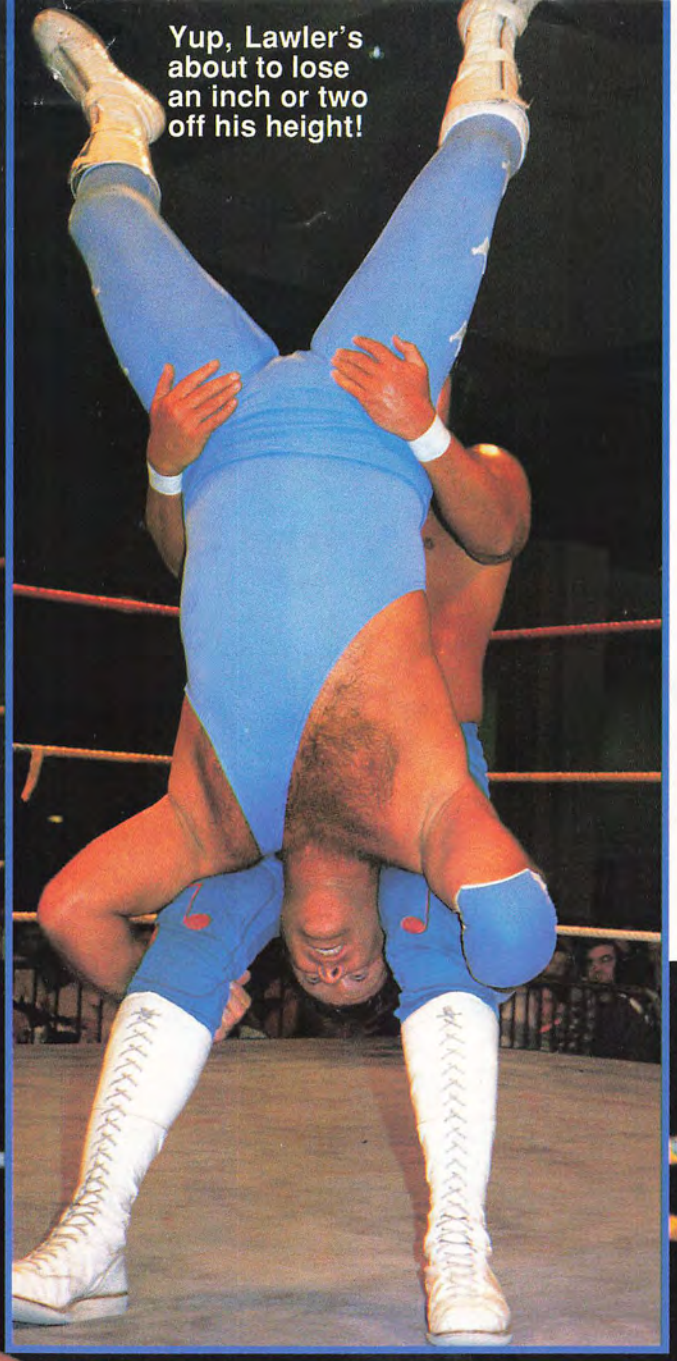
Lawler retaliates with a stiff right hand to Honky's kisser!



Lawler tells the singer that he's never bought any of his records. That REALLY ticks off Honky!



Oh-oh, looks like a piledriver!



Yup, Lawler's about to lose an inch or two off his height!

Honky takes the action outside the ring.

Because of the double disqualification, Lawler got to keep his USWA belt. Now the word is that Honky is going to be wrestling regularly for the USWA, so look for this feud to continue.

Honky works Lawler's neck against the guard-railing. At that point both men were counted out of the ring.
